Horrible, but Welcome
Evolution as Assassin
Really Big Business
The President Might Say

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.

OUR NAVY will make experiments with what is called the "death stroke," an interesting invention guaranteed to destroy all life with which it comes in contact within a radius of twenty miles.

IT IS horrible, but welcome. Make war dangerous enough and war will stop. Don't believe the ignorant millions who think that a thing always will be, because it always has been.

Two men pointing automatic pistols at each other's hearts don't shoot. That only happens when one of them gets the drop.

MR. BRYAN'S speech for the Scopes trial, never delivered, is now printed. Bryan wrote: "Evolution is a damnable philosophy, and when the students become stupefied by it and commit murder, neither they nor the universities are to blame."

MURDERS that can directly be traced to the teaching of evolution are limited, perhaps, because evolution is young.

Did Mr. Bryan ever consider the murders that can be traced directly and positively to the hatreds and the teachings of religion? There have been millions of such murders, including thousands burned to death, yet no one suggested a law to prohibit religious teaching. This is no plea for evolution; it doesn't need any. But it will take evolution, in the way of murder, a long time to equal the record of religion.

MR. BRYAN also says that evolution "Takes faith out of the hearts of men and women and leads them out into a starless night."

That is a beautiful part of a beautiful speech. But a night isn't necessarily starless because you happen to know that the earth is round, that the sun lighting it is a very small star among the other stars, and that a Supreme Being, capable of directing all those stars and everything that lies beyond them, might be beyond the understanding of the particular tribe of insects living on this planet.

THIS COUNTRY does business on a scale that would have horrified the first "trust busters." You read that the Pan-American Oil Company is saving its oil in Mexico, is using United States oil while that is so cheap. Yet that company is taking out 80,000 barrels of Mexican oil a day.

And the big steel company announces net profits for every three months of forty million dollars. Quite a "business."

Yet business in Europe is organized on an even bigger scale, for there governments themselves are in business, and successfully. That's why our manufacturers that use most of the world's rubber are paying a perfectly ridiculous price for it, the price being controlled by the British Empire.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is depressed by wage cutting in New England textile works. He might say to employers that cut wages: "The law authorizes me to change the tariff in an emergency. Your decision to cut wages creates an emergency. Therefore I shall cut the tariff that protects you, by an amount sufficient to take the profit out of wage cutting."

THE EMPLOYERS might reply: "If you do that, we shall have to shut our mills." That's the other side of the story.

POLICE ESCORT BRYAN'S WIDOW

Washington, July 30 (A.P.).—William Jennings Bryan came back to Washington today to receive the last rites of the church before he begins his long rest in the Potomac hills amidst a great company of the nation's illustrious dead.

The funeral train, the caravan of sorrow, which had borne him from Dayton, Tenn., where he died last Sunday, reached the Union Station early in the day, but its arrival found a reverent throng in waiting.

TWO NEW SUSPECTS FACE GRILLING IN DEATHS OF SISTERS

Hudson, N. H., July 30.—Still groping for a ray of light in the darkness surrounding the Gillis murders, police today heard the tale of a mystery car at midnight near the Gillis home, and quizzed two suspects.

The suspects were Louis Lebombard, brother-in-law of Charlie Le Febvre, fifteen-year-old chore boy for the Gillis sisters, and Peter Le-Brun of Manchester, arrested in a Londonderry house into which he is alleged to have forced his way.

With strange tenacity, the investigation into the brutal slaying of Helen Gillis, eighty, and her sister, Georgianna, seventy-seven, still has as central figures the LeFebvre boys and certain of their relatives.

Andrew LeFebvre, a cousin, has

GOVERNMENT READY TO SEIZE COAL MINES

Washington, July 30.—The Bureau of Mines has prepared plans for seizing and operating the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania in case the President should decide such action necessary in the event of a strike.

Though Mr. Coolidge has such power in the case of an emergency, it is believed here that he would use it only as a last resort.

The plans just prepared are similar to those drawn up in 1923 for been partially eliminated, but the grilling of Lebombard today was a severe one.

The hunt was given new excitement today, however, when Mrs. Lemuel H. Clark of No. 9 Lowell road, a house not far from the death cottage, remembered that at midnight on the night of the murder, a big closed car, with curtains drawn low, stopped in front of her house.

In a small town such as Hudson the circumstance at the late hour was so unusual, Mrs. Clark said, that she got out of bed and peered out the window, through cupped hands, the better to see what was going on outside.

For several minutes, the woman told the Nashua police, the mystery car remained motionless in the wet street, then the driver turned the machine and drove off in the direction of Lowell.

POLICE TRACE STRANGER.

Another point given the police by Mrs. Clark had to do with a stranger walking the road toward Lowell during the rainstorm.

Mrs. Clark, seeing the man, remarked to her husband, she said, that the man must be a stranger, else he would not be walking in the rain. Instead he would have been under cover at his own or a neighbor's house.

The man was walking rapidly, she said, and police are endeavoring to trace his course beyond Hudson.

Fifteen-year-old Charlie LeFebvre, five times grilled by the police and telling nearly as many differing stories, told today what he said was his truthful relation.

In significant fashion yesterday, young Charlie, while being pleaded with his cousin Andrew to tell the truth, appeared on the point of making an impressive statement, when the arrival of Police Inspector McCarthy, closed the boy's mouth suddenly.

The begging and pleading of his cousin had filled Charlie's eyes with tears and his mouth had opened for the utterance of words, when Inspector McCarthy's footsteps sounded. Charlie's little body stiffened and he said calmly:

"I mustn't say anything, Andrew."

Young LeFebvre was employed by the aged sisters as chore boy. Winter and Summer his services were at the sisters' disposal, and he never received more than sixty cents a week. "If I did not like them pretty well you don't think I would tramp through the snow drifts to tend their furnace for that, do you?" he asked.

The boy said a mistake over dates accounted for the police's contention that he told conflicting stories.

SAYS TIME WASTED.

When told another of his relatives, Andrew LeFebvre, had been taken into custody in connection with the case, the boy said: "Well, they might as well go out and round them all up if they have a mind to, but I'm telling you now that it looks to me like wasted time. If relatives of mine had anything to do with it, I'd probably know something about it.

"The papers make a lot of fuss about my stories, saying they don't agree about where I was all the time.

"The true story is I mowed the lawn at the Gillis sisters' home Tuesday morning, completing the job at 11 o'clock. Georgia gave me a pair of white trousers and I went home to dinner and put them on. Then I came back to let the sisters look at me. Both Georgie and Helen said I looked fine in them.

WENT AFTER WOOD.

"I left their house that night at about 7 o'clock and when I got home my father was there. That's the story I missed up on. I thought I mowed the lawn on Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

"Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock I went to the Union Station for a trunk, borrowing Mr. Borrette's horse. I got back from the depot at 11:45, unhitched the horse and put him in the barn. Then I came home to dinner, after which I went with Arthur Borrette with the same horse and wagon into the woods to bring back a load of wood.

"We got back about 3 o'clock, unloaded the wagon and unhitched the horse. I remember well that we also greased the wagon and that Arthur went to buy a bottle of tonic. The next thing that happened was when Mrs. Paris' little girl came over and asked if I'd go to the store and get some thread and I told her my bicycle wasn't home. My brother Raymond said to take his, but instead I let him do the errand.

GIVEN CARFARE, TOO.

"She gave him 25 cents to get five spools of thread, but they didn't have the right kind and she asked him to go to the Five-and-Ten-Cent store. To do that Raymond took the electric car and she gave him 20 cents carfare. That was at about 5 o'clock and Raymond was back in about quarter of an hour.

"I then went home and stayed around the house. Later I got my own bicycle and came down to play with the Paris girl.

"I haven't any reason to hold anything back, but the police think I am. Those girls always were very good to me and if I knew anyone harmed them I'd be telling about it. I was always willing to do anything they asked. They always gave me flowers if I asked for them.

TOP PAY 60 CENTS.

"The most they ever paid me was 60 cents a week in the cold weather. I wouldn't walk through the snow drifts the snow ploughs couldn't break through just to shake down their furnace every morning and night in the Wintrr if I didn't like them pretty well.

"In the Spring I took out the ashes and in the Summer I mowed the lawn and kept the place looking good."

The boy said what the police thought were blood stains on his clothes were spots of paint that spilled on him when he was painting some furniture in his home.

Napoleon LeFevre, father of the boy, declared he could never get Charles to kill a chicken. "He always managed to put it off until I got home, and then I had to do it," said the elder. "He's driven horses a lot and I never knew him to use a whip."

"I drove team all Summer," said the boy, "and no one ever saw me hit a horse."

BODY OF BRYAN LIES IN STATE IN CHURCH

Widow Bears Up Well on Long Trip; Greeted by Friends in Washington

The bronze casket was taken from the station to an undertaker's parlors, pending removal to the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, where the funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

POLICE ESCORT PARTY.

A detail of police escorted the party through crowds that lined the inner concourse of the station. In the President's room of the station they rested a few minutes before entering cabs for the trip to the hotel. Several hundreds gathered behind the police lines stood with bared heads as the widow and her party passed around the concourse and out over Massachusetts avenue.

Not until after Mrs. Bryan had left the train was the casket removed. The guard of honor, veterans of the World War, placed it in a motor hearse, while the crowds stood in silence. None of the Bryan party accompanied the body to the undertaking parlor and the hearse moved slowly along Massachusetts avenue and out Tenth street, almost unnoticed by the throngs of government clerks and others hurrying to the day's work.

A small group of government officials greeted Mrs. Bryan at the station. She appeared in good spirits, despite the strain of the long journey from Tennessee. She had arisen nearly an hour before the train reached Washington, and told friends she had a restful night.

Immediately upon arrival, the widow and her party were taken to the Lafayette hotel, near the White House, where they will remain until the funeral services. They will be joined tomorrow morning by William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and by a daughter of the Commoner, Mrs. Grace Hargreaves, who are coming here from California.

"TAPS" AT THE GRAVE.

At the church the bronze casket, the lower half covered by an American flag, will be placed upon a slightly raised platform in front of the altar, where the public can view his body this afternoon and tomorrow morning. Traffic will be cleared from the two streets, which, converging, form the triangle upon which the edifice stands.

The church doors will be closed at noon tomorrow, to reopen later for the funeral services, which will be conducted by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, the pastor.

As Mr. Bryan had wished, his funeral will be marked by the utmost simplicity. There will be brief services at the grave and such military honors as it is customary for the government to pay to those buried in the National Cemetery will be omitted.

The only touch of the military funeral will be after the brief service at the grave, when a bugler will sound "taps," the farewell to the soldier.

WAGES OF 6,400 WORKERS IN R. I. MILLS ORDERED CUT

Pawtucket, July 30 (A.P.).The J. & P. Coats plant, employing 4,200 persons in cotton thread manufacture, has posted notice of a reduction in wages to go into effect August 3. The amount was not stated but officials said today it probably would be 10 per cent. The last cut in wages made by this concern was in 1921. The Lorraine Company, manufacturing cotton and woolen goods and employing 2,200, also has posted notice of a reduction. Treasurer William B. MacColl said the cut which would probably be 10 per cent. was necessary to compete with other mills.

TELLS OF CRACK IN PICKWICK BUILDING

John O'Connor, a contractor, testifying today at the trial of the twelve men indicted in the Pickwick Club collapse, said that early in May, while passing the club building in Beach street, he noticed a crack in the wall.

Several times thereafter, he continued, he noticed the crack, and on July 2, two days before the club fell in, he remarked that it seemed to have widened.

Benton R. Phelps of the Park-Davis Manufacturing Company was the first witness today. He had testified that on the morning of July 3 he saw a workman digging "at" one of the concrete piers of the Pickwick Club.

Today Daniel J. Gallagher, of counsel for the defence, tried to shake him in his story. Phelps stuck to it.

O'Connor, a contractor, said that in May, on passing the building, he noticed a small crack on the easterly corner of the sixth window from Washington street, and next to the party wall.

On July 21, he continued, the crack appeared to have become larger, and a solid stone lintel had cracked clean through, in line with the crack in the wall.

Judge Lummus—Were the bricks themselves cracked; or was it a separation in the mortar?

Witness—It was a separation of the bricks, but the lintel was cracked through.

Q.—Did you notice the excavation? Was it close to the foundation of the Pickwick Club building?

A.—It was close. The concrete piers were exposed.

The fund is shared with the cities and towns on the basis of the salaries paid to school teachers and the amount that each community contributes to the total of this form of taxation. WARRANT FOR ATTORNEY IN BUS THEFT

Littleton to Face Court Later on Three Charges of Alleged Larceny

subject of action by the Motor and Bus Association, for the present at least.

Mrs. Page's explanation of her connection with Littleton, it is said, is satisfactory to those interested in prosecuting Littleton.

The warrant naming Littleton was issued by Judge Parmenter at the request of Attorney Thomason, who declared that because of the mysterious disappearance of the 3,000 certified signatures, the Motor Coach and Bus Association was unable to file at the State House last Tuesday signatures to prevent the new bus control act from becoming effective.

By provisions of the new law, every bus company in the State must obtain a permit from the Department of Public Utilities showing that the bus line is required by "public necessity and convenience," and in addition, a permit from the State Public Works Department for use of the highways.

Mrs. Page appeared at the courthouse, accompanied by Miss Carrie F. Sheehan, deputy election commissioner, just as the Little hearing ended. She had a long talk with several of the lawyers present.

Her name was introduced in the hearing by Attorney Herbert A. Kenny, counsel for Littleton, who read a letter purporting to have been signed by Mrs. Page as secretary of the Massachusetts Progressive League of No. 87 Bedford street.

ASKED FOR SIGNATURES.

In this letter, sent in circular form to thousands of persons, according to Attorney Kenny, Mrs. Page was declared to have requested those to whom it was sent to secure signatures for the referendum petition.

Littleton was declared to be president of the Progressive League.

Mrs. Page, in an explanation of her connection with Littleton, is said to have declared that Littleton left a bundle at the office of the league, and this bundle, while she said it may have contained petitions, may also have contained anything else in the world, as far as she knew.

She made her explanation to representatives of the Motor Coach and Bur Association previous to today's hearing and it is understood they are content that she knows nothing of the disappearance of the signatures.

At the hearing on the application for a warrant against Littleton, Attorney Thomason told Judge Parmenter he hired Littleton to go out and get signatures for the petition.

He declared that he met Littleton at City Hall an hour and a half before the time expired for filing the petition, and that Littleton at that late hour told him the signatures in question were lost.

Thomason said Littleton told him that probably Mrs. Page had them. The time was up before an investigation could be made, he said, and he does not know yet where the missing papers are.

PLEA FIDELITY GRANTED.

Attorney Kenny, representing Littleton, asked Thomason if he did not know that Littleton is a reputable Boston lawyer. Attorney Thomason said he did not know it.

Attorney Kenny said that Littleton is not in good health and he asked if the court was willing to let him make arrangement with opposing counsel to produce his client next Tuesday. Judge Parmenter and counsel agreed to this.

Kenny produced the Massachusetts Progressive League letter to show that any money Littleton may have received was not received as salary but for expenses, the cost of typing and mailing the circular letter being one of the chief items of expense, he said.

Mrs. Page is said to have told those investigating for the bus association that she became acquainted with Little first through the fact that he comes of a New York family of high standing in society.

Previous to today's hearing, former Attorney-General Boynton, counsel for Mrs. Page, had asked to be heard in connection with the application for the warrant naming Littleton. He did not appear in court today, hoever.

"DADDY" HELD AS CHILD, 5, CALMLY PUFFS "PILL"

New York, July 30 (I.N.S.).—Warren Fitkins, forty, said to be general manager of the Arkansas Crystal Company of Caddegat, Ark., was arrested today on charges of improper guardianship and intoxication after, it is alleged he tried to abandon in a taxicab a five-year-old child, who called him "Daddy."

Fitkins had an argument with the driver over the fare. During the argument the child reached into Fitkin's pocket, pulled out a package of cigarettes and lit one.

A policeman, who was listening to the argument over the fare, arrested Fitkins. The child said his mother lives in Cleveland.

WIDE SEARCH ON FOR FLEEING HOTEL THUG

Supposed to Have $10,000 Loot After Holdup in Which 3 Were Slain

Chicago, July 30.—The boldest robbery in the history of Chicago, was the verdict of the police today, commenting on the five heavily-armed thugs who invaded the fashionable Drake Hotel in Sheridan road.

They met unexpected resistance. Two pistol battles occurred in the hotel corridors, throwing hundreds of guests into panic. There ensued a running battle along five miles of Chicago's park drives between one of the thugs and the police.

Two of the four thugs were killed outright. Two were captured after gun fights and the fifth escaped with the loose cash in the hotel office, variously estimated at from $2,500 to $10,000, and wide search is being made for him. Frank Rodkey, head clerk and cashier, was shot by the robbers and died later.

The dead are: Frank Rodke, head clerk of the Drake Hotel; "Tex" Cort, cowpuncher and thug, formerly of New York, and Nells Nelson, another thug, former waiter at the Drake Hotel. The younded are: Carl Anderson, cashier at the Drake Hotel, shot through abdomen, and in serious condition; Policeman Clarence Daloff, shot through the hand.

For sheer nerve the hold-up surpasses anything even Chicago has experienced. Nothing in a wild-west show ever approached the outlaw effort. The utter bravado of the quartette leads to the belief they were all under the influence of narcotics.

The captured men gave the names of James Woods and Jack Holmes. Woods admitted that his was an assumed name and said he had come to Chicago two weeks ago. He corroborated Holmes' story that Nelson was the instigator of the robbery.

The thug who escaped was called "Nugent" by his companions in the robbery. According to police, Woods has confessed his part in the robbery, saying all he got out of it was $20.

Murder indictments were sought today against the two prisoners and the fugitive killer.

Anti Aircraft Report 'Bunk,' Says Mitchell

SEES MOVE TO INJURE FLIERS

Report on Gun Tests Called Propaganda Issued to Discredit Aerial Service

San Antonio, Tex., July 30 (A.P.).—Col. William Mitchell, at Fort Sam Houston, when informed of the anti-aircraft tests report of Rear Admiral Hughes at Washington, said:

"That's all bunk. It's worse than bunk. It's propaganda issued in a desperate effort to discredit the air service.

"In the first place we can't keep an airplane in the air at thirty-three miles an hour, the speed at which the targets were towed," Colonel Mitchell continued, "and in the next place, when planes attack they travel about three times thirty-three miles an hour.

"There's a little difference, too, in shooting at a slowly moving target and trying to hit one going 100 miles an hour.

CALLS IT "ALL BUNK."

"When you shoot at a target with a gun you ought to know about where it is, but an airplane attack can be made on a ship or other objective without being seen, or located accurately enough to make close firing possible. They can probably hit a few airplanes in an attack with anti-aircraft guns, but they don't knock out enough of them to prevent an effective air attack from being made.

"PROPAGANDA."

"All this propaganda about the effectiveness of anti-aircraft guns is misleading and does more harm than good. All aviators know how small their chances are of being hit by anti-aircraft fire. It's all bunk. They could do more good by spending some of that money on submarines and get under the water with them.

"The air service never has been given an opportunity to really show what it can do against anti-aircraft guns. Give us a chance to demonstrate, and then let the ground guns show what they can do. An airplane can blow your battleship clear out of the water before being seen."

Henry Ford at 62 Says He Lives 'in Present'

Detroit, July 30. (A.P.)—Henry Ford, millionaire maker of automobiles, celebrates his sixty-second birthday today, but with him birthdays are an undiscussed subject. His comments were confined to a few brief statements relative to his good health and expressions of optimism over the future.

He was asked how a man felt at sixty-two about his diminishing years, to which the manufacturer replied:

"Why, I never think of diminishing days. I'm living in today, not tomorrow or yesterday. Yesterday has been taken care of and tomorrow will take care of itself."

OTHER WOMAN IS BLAMED IN 3 DEATHS

New Haven, Conn., July 30 (A.P.)—Despondency over another woman led Michael Senczuk of Providence, R. I., to poison his two sons and then commit suicide in a room in the Hotel Flanagan here, Mrs. Julia Senczuk, widow of the dead man and mother of the two boys, told Coroner Eli Mix.

A Providence undertaker arrived here, intending to take the three bodies back to Providence for burial, but the coroner refused to issue the necessary permit until the widow had arrived and had told her story.

Mrs. Senczuk told the coroner that a few weeks ago her husband left home and was gone three or four days. Upon his return he stated he had been to Springfield, Mass., to visit a brother. Mrs. Senczuk said she learned that he had not been in Springfield.

She and her husband had quarreled over the other woman, Mrs. Senczuk told the coroner, and she said she had found letters and photographs from the woman in her husband's clothing. She said she had never met the woman and did not know where she lived.

On July 3, according to Mrs. Senczuk, her husband left his work, and on July 14 drew $1,622 from a Providence bank. Following an argument Mrs. Senczuk said he turned the money over to her. The next day he and the two sons left home.

GARY HEADS WAR ON CRIME

May Urge Coolidge to Aid; Child Shows Nation Is Worse Than Turkey

New York, July 30 (A.P.)—Prominent citizens throughout the country are starting a crusade against criminals who, in the view of some of the organizers, have made life and property in the United States more unsafe than in any other civilized country.

Formation of a national crime commission was decided upon at a meeting of jurists, legislators, police officials, merchants and others, called by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation.

Presiding at the meeting in his office, Mr. Gary urged that President Coolidge be acquainted with the crusade and perhaps be asked to participate.

TO AROUSE SENTIMENT.

Among those who attended the meeting were Governor Smith, Richard Washburn Child, former Ambassador to Italy, who recently completed a national crime survey; William E. Knox, president of the American Bankers' Association, and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The commission, as set forth at the meeting, will seek by education to arouse an anti-crime sentiment throughout the country. Its members are to be limited to citizens who will be free to speak their minds to officialdom.

Successful methods of combatting crime in one community are to be brought to the attention of other communities. A critical eye will be kept on the police, judiciary, prosecuting officials and penal institutions.

Governor Smith proposed a plan for revolutionizing crime laws in New York State. He withheld making public the details.

WORSE THAN TURKEY.

Mr. Child said that within fifteen years the average age of persons committing violent crimes had declined ten years.

"The lack of effective punishment," he said, "is due largely to the fact that too much is said and done about rehabilitating the criminal. The whole system should be based on proper deterents for the potential criminal."

"There is no place in the world where crime is more rampant than in the United States. There are more murders and other crimes of violence committed here in a small town like Memphis, Tenn., for instance, than there are in all Turkey."

TEMPLARS GET 10,000 CANS OF HUB BEANS

Roxbury Knights at Seattle Conclave Advertise Boston's Noted Dish

Seattle, Wash., July 30. — Ten thousand cans of Boston baked beans were distributed to guests at the reception and dance for Seattle Knights Templars and by members of the Joseph Warren Commandery, No. 26, who brought the widely known Hub delicacy across the continent. An equal number of boxes of candy was also distributed.

The Joseph Warren Commandery was presented with a floral token of appreciation for its work by the Grand Commandery, Acting Grand Commander James A. Gunn making the presentation address and Commander Wolkins the acceptance.

Owing to the death of the late Eminent Sir Knight Asa C. Jewett, Grand Commander, en route to the conclave, the Grand Commandery is holding no social functions. Members of the commandery, however, were in attendance at the Joseph Warren Commandery reception.

There are seventy-nine women in the party from Roxbury.

The special train will re-enter the United States at Niagara Falls and is expected to reach Boston about August 10. Henry Wolkins is commander of the commandery; Frank H. Jenkins, generalissimo, and Alfred W. Godfrey, captain-general.

Louise Mather Page to Be Bride This Afternoon

Washington Girl and Young Baltimore Matron Will Be Her Attendants

Betty Alden

MISS LOUISE MATHER PAGE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page of West Newton, is a bride this afternoon at the home of her parents. Miss Louise Lucas of Washington, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Lee Fisher of Baltimore, as matron of honor, will attend her. John Boucher Morris, son of Mrs. Morris of New York and the late Mr. Morris, will have as best man George Edward Kemp, also of Gotham.

THE REV. DR. RICHARD LORING will read the Episcopal marriage service, and Mr. Page gives his daughter in marriage. After the ceremonial there is a wedding supper and reception on the lawns of the Page place in West Newton. The bride is a charming girl, of lovely coloring and a decided flair for the picturesque in attire, and will be an unusually attractive bride. She came out two years ago and belongs to the Vincent Club.

MISS POLLY PALFREY, daughter of the John G. Palfreys of Brookline, is daily adding new leaves to her laurel wreath in tennis achievement. Just now she is a very youthful star shining on Tedesco links at Swampscott, moving on there from last week's matches in Manchester at the Essex County Club. Miss Lee Palfrey, a younger sister, also is reaping new honors in her chosen field of sport.

THE SMART SET'S active tennis aspirants now at the Swampscott courts include Mrs. Roger Griswold, formerly Miss Penelope Parkman, a leader of the Vincent Club cohorts a year or two back.

Mrs. Richard Sears Humphrey back in Duxbury after a week-end in Newport as a guest at the Vanderbilt-Church wedding, which so intrigued society at the Rhode Island spa. Mr. Humphrey was an usher at the much-paragraphed ceremonial.

The Griswolds, with their trend to stardom in sports (Mr. Griswold of the Eastern Yacht set is a real "blue water" sailor) are located at Marblehead this Summer, in quaint old Fountain Inn Lane, on the mainland just overlooking the teeming harbor.

NEW YORK, Washington and the older Newport each has a representation in Hamilton MacFadden's repertory theatre company, now holding the Empire boards at Salem. Miss Helen Chisholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scheffiin Chisholm of Gotham, Miss Helen Page, a fair Washingtonian and niece of Dr. Channing Frothingham of Boston, and Mrs. John Barrymore, in her girlhood days Blanche Oelhrichs of New York and Newport, have joined the MacFadden company.

THE BARRYMORE household is set up this Summer in the Harry Lee home at Beverly. Mrs. Barrymore's little daughter, Diana, is there, and the two sons. Mrs. Barrymore, whose friends delight to call her "Michael Strange," is continuing her literary work under that nom de plume. In her Blanche Oelhrich days at Newport she scribbled as a child at Bailey's Beach, and not until long after she became Mrs. Leonard Thomas were any of her works published.

MRS. HENRY HOLT, JR., of New York, formerly Miss Elizabeth Cabot, daughter of the T. Handasyd Cabots of Newbury street and Dublin, N. H., is to do the Mad Scene from Hamlet as Ophelia at Mrs. Guy Currier's Mariarden, up in the hills of Peterborough at the Shakesperian festival.

ANOTHER BOSTON young set member, Miss Janet Sabine, with linguistic and theatric abilities well proven, is to be the stately Portia and Miss Lucy Currier plays Juliet to Kenneth Hunter's Romeo. The new theatre at Mariarden, simulating the out of doors while in reality under cover from the elements, is the setting, tomorrow and Saturday evenings the time.

CLAIMS HE'S SON OF LATE JUDGE WILDER

Memories of childhood and desire to find his relatives prompted a letter received by Mayor Curley yesterday from George W. Wilder of Denver, son of the late Superior Court Judge James Wilder. Mayor Curley turned the letter over to Superintendent of Police Michael Crowley. It reads:

"Will you try and help me locate some of my relatives? I am a son of the late James Wilder, Superior Court judge. I left home when a youth. I had eleven sisters and no brothers.

HARVARD WILL SEE JITNEY PLAYERS

Stage Itinerants to Present Four Little Dramas in the Yard Wednesday

Traveling about New England with their scenery, sets, costumes and properties in motor trucks, one of which at night unfolds to form their stage, the well-known colorful band of Jitney Players, including representatives of Yale, Trinity College, Vassar and Harvard, will present a special program for the students of the Summer school at Harvard.

Four plays will be given next Wednesday night in Harvard Yard, including, "A Penny for Pierrot," "Deirdre," "The Loan of a Lover," and "The School for Husbands."

These itinerants of the stage and devotees of repertory are under the direction of Bushnell Cheney, whose automobile enables them to carry on their theatrical project.

When one remembers that Eugene O'Neill got his start in the same way, the work of the Jitney Players is all the more interesting. Arthur Sircom, Yale, '24, of Malden is one of the New Englanders in the company.

No admission is to be charged, but tickets are to be issued to the students through the director of the Summer school. The performance will begin at 9 o'clock.

The personnel of the group includes Bushnell Cheney of New York and Madison, Ct.; Dorothy Colt of New York, who will sing ballads and songs between the acts; Alice Keating of New York and Madison; Merrill Sherman of Hartford, Ct., president of the Trinity Jesters; Frances Simpson of Hartford, Ct.; Richard Skinner of New York; Day Tuttle of New York; Ethel Wilcox of Buffalo, N. STATE WORKERS JOIN IN 'WHITE COLLAR' WAR

Edict Refusing a Wage Raise Stirs Beacon Hill, and Strike Is Talked

State House employes are the latest to prove that there is starch in the "white collar" revolt against wages and conditions which are declared to be no better than that of unskilled labor.

The State commission on administration and finance had scarcely made the announcement that it had disapproved of the proposed $300,000 general salary increase for State employes during the coming year when the 400 engineers of the Department of Public Works got into action.

Then as if to give stiffening to the movement came word from City Hall that the 200 civil and mechanical engineers, draftsmen, transit men and rod men were taking steps to present Mayor Curley with a demand for a 25 per cent. wage increase.

It was asserted that the majority of the State engineers receive less than $1,800 yearly. Many are paid only $1,500.

Provisional plans for action that might go as far as a walkout were reported as having been made but nothing specific as to any drastic action was given out.

Whether the "white collar" movement will spread to other State departments remains to be seen. The seed, however, could be seen sprouting in the open resentment against the Finance Commission's ukase

KRESGE DENIES HE OWES WIFE A PENNY

Has Paid Everything He Agreed to, He Declares, in Reply to Suit

New York, July 30.—Sebastian S. Kresge, multi-millionaire chain store merchant, whose wife, Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, is suing him for $1,000,000, denies he owes his wife a penny.

In an answer to her suit served on Nathan Burkan, her attorney, by his counsel, Leonard Baldwin, Kresge denies all the mean things his wife said about him. Among others things, she swears that her husband called her a gold-digger when he tossed his ties and collars into a suitcase and stalked out of their home in Park avenue, which had cost her $40,000 to feather.

Kresge admitted signing a pre-nuptial agreement on the morning of their wedding in April, 1924, by which he promised to give to his wife-to-be $1,000,000 in Kresge Store stock. This would be 2,500 shares at $400 each par.

He denies that he promised her in an oral agreement 15,000 additional shares worth $6,000,000 or that he forced her to waive her dower rights. Mrs. Kresge originally sued for $7,000,000, but has since cut her claim to $1,000,000.

"Every dollar I promised to pay to my wife I have paid and more," Kresge contends.

FILM STAR ASKS CITIZENSHIP RETURNED

Constance Talmadge Lost It When She Wed Greek, Now Divorced

Los Angeles, July 30 (A. P.).—Constance Talmadge, motion picture actress, who became a Greek subject by marrying a wealthy New York tobacco man in 1920, has filed an application for restoration to her former status as an American citizen.

Miss Talmadge, divorced the New York tobacco man, John Plaglogou in 1922, but that did not make her an American; nor would marriage to some one else have improved matters, so far as the existing naturalization law is concerned.

Hence her call at the Federal building to effect legal separation from the nationality of her ex-husband.

Five thousand dollars go to the Grand Masonic Lodge of Vermont, and the Fairbanks Board for the Relief of Ministers, with headquarters at St. Johnsbury, receives $4,000.

SHE'S STAR WITHOUT A COUNTRY

Constance Talmadge, of screen fame, lost her American citizenship when she wed a Greek tobacco man, now seeks to get it back, since she is divorced.

PLAN TO GUARD PACIFIC FROM AIR ATTACKS

Los Angeles, Shenandoah and 2 Other Dirigibles Will Be Stationed There

Washington, July 30.—Transfer of the big dirigibles Los Angeles and Shenandoah to San Diego, announced by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, is only the first step in a gigantic plan to make the United States impregnable from Asiatic attack by air.

The plan includes:

Establishment of a gigantic lighter-than-air aircraft base at San Diego to train with the fleet.

Dotting the Pacific Coast with auxiliary air bases.

Building two huge dirigibles of 6,000,000 cubic feet—or three times the size of the Shenandoah—with a touring range of 7,150 miles.

Retention of the Lakehurst, N. J., lighter-than-air aircraft base, to render the East safe from European invasion by air.

The Lakehurst hangars, shops and barracks cost in the neighborhood of $10,000,000.

Even bigger ones will be required for San Diego, as two giant 6,000,000 cubic foot dirigibles, biggest in the world, planned by the Navy, will in all probability be sent there as soon as constructed.

Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of naval aviation, estimated the new dirigibles would cost $6,000,000 each. They would outstrip the projected British ships by 1,000,000 cubic feet.

COMMUTERS PREPARE TO FIGHT FARE INCREASE

New York, July 30 (A.P.)—A committee on organization headed by Judge Van Auken, New Rochelle corporation counsel, was selected by commuters from Long Island, Westchester County and New Jersey as the first step in their fight against a threatened general increase of from 20 to 40 per cent. in commutation rates.

House of Money

Proposed new 10-story building of the Union Institution of Savings to be erected on the present site at No. 216 Tremont street, adjoining the Hotel Touraine.

BIG NEW BANK GOING UP ON TREMONT ST.

A new ten-story bank and office building will be erected by the Union Institution for Savings on the site of its present building at No. 216 Tremont street, adjoining the Hotel Touraine.

The building will be one of the most modern type of fireproof construction. The exterior will be of Indiana limestone with ornamental grill work protecting the windows of the first-story banking rooms.

The main entrance will be on Tremont street, with a spacious lobby where elevators will lead to the offices on the upper floors. The offices will all front on either Lagrange street or Tremont street, giving them plenty of daylight.

The main banking rooms will be finished in marble and bronze and ornamental plaster. Security storage vaults will be located both on the main floor and in the basement.

The Union Institution for Savings is a mutual savings bank, founded in 1865, and the beginnings of work on the new building will mark its sixtieth anniversary. The bank was one of the first to develop school children's savings and has more than $25,000 of this form of savings on its books.

The officers at present are: Henry V. Cunningham, president; Edmund Reardon, vice-president; Thomas J. Kelly, treasurer; John J. McCluskey, assistant treasurer, and William E. Mackey, clerk of corporation.

MERCHANDISE BROKERS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

The Boston Merchandise Brokers' Association held its annual picnic and outing at Norumbega Park. The members are representatives of national food manufacturers and distributors, and the annual outing is one of the outstanding affairs every year. The party of more than 250 left the Board of Trade Building in special motor cars, and upon the arrival at Norumbega Park enjoyed a luncheon and entertainment. A ball game was staged between the married and single members of the association. Games and sports were staged for the women and children.

The committee in charge was headed by W. F. Childs, president of the association; assisted by William Mann, Chester I. Chase, George William Bentley, Jr., P. L. McLaughlin; George Cole, Charles R. Marshall. The prizes for the various events were contributed by the members of the association.

THREE ARRESTS AFTER RUM BRAWL DEATH

Springfield, July 30 (A.P.).—Following a brawl in the rear of his home Yochim Solachek died of a fractured skull and three of his neighbors are held by the police pending the outcome of an autopsy. The police declare that the fight which resulted in Solachek's death was over liquor.

If the medical examiner's formal report finds death due to the act of another, one or all of the suspects may face manslaughter charges, the authorities say.

MILK UP ½ CENT TO DEALERS IN BOSTON

Increase Announced by N. E. Producers to Become Effective Aug. 1

An increase in the price of milk of half a cent, effective August 1, is announced by the sales comm'ttee of the New England Milk Producers' Association.

The price to Boston dealers will be advanced from 8 to 8½ cents a quart, delivered in Boston.

The increase was described by the association as the usual seasonal advance, due to the fact that the season of relatively heavy and cheap production is nearing a close and that more grain will from now on be fed to keep up the supply.

PRINCESS MAFALDA TO BE SEPTEMBER BRIDE

FOUR MISSING GIRLS SOUGHT BY POLICE

Three Disappear from Homes in Salem; Biddeford Miss Believed in New Jersey

Relatives and police were today searching for four missing New England girls ranging in age from fourteen years to seventeen.

At Salem, three girls were reported missing from their homes, two of whom, Dorothy McLellan, fourteen years old, of No. 28 Clifton avenue, and Annie Cotter, fifteen years old, of No. 44 Howard street, were believed to have gone to Canada, accompanied by two young men.

The third girl missing from Salem is seventeen-year-old Beatrice Swinehamer of No. 36½ Hancock street. Friends think she went to New York in answer to telegrams received from a young man in that city. When she spoke of this plan to her family she was forbidden to leave. The girl then drew her savings from a local bank and left home.

At Biddeford, Me., fourteen-year-old Jeannette Dauphinais was reported absent from her home. One report received by the police is that she left the city by automobile with two young men, bound for Montclair, N. J.

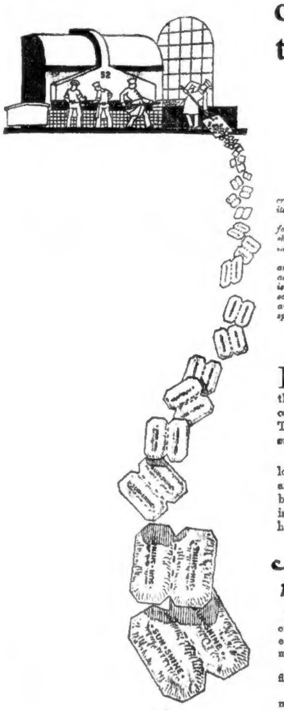
Steaming out—

one step in baking this new Soda Cracker



The flavor of this cracker owes much to its shape (patented).

The notched sides form vent holes in the sheet of crackers as they bake.

This assures through and through baking. In addition this cracker is more convenient to eat—doesn't crumble and can readily be split in two.

PERHAPS the most pleasing compliment we have had on the new Sunshine Soda Cracker comes from those who cook well. They say that they taste home-made.

Thorough steaming out has a lot to do with this. This studied and exactly timed pause between baking and packaging puts a finish on good baking. Remember how home-made bread must cool slowly and that no one wants to cut a cake hot.

This waiting, when you are baking a few million crackers, costs time and money. It takes up valuable space, even in Thousand Window Bakeries, but it does make a good cracker.

It locks the flavor in and secures the crispness and bite that good cooks smile about.

A hundred niceties like this in the FULL GRAIN PROCESS

Within the last year, after months of trial and study, Sunshine Bakeries have perfected a way of making soda crackers better.

Better in several ways — in flavor, in texture, and in looks.

We are a little jealous of this method, a bit proud, maybe, because there are several baking innovations involved in it. The blending of the flour, the handling of the dough (something new), and in securing uniformity day in and day out.

The test of any baking process, of course, is in the cracker itself.

We honestly think that you will like this new soda cracker, which you can recognize by its special shape, even before you eat it.

POLICE IN FOR WIDE RUM CLEANUP

More Raids to Follow Big Haul in South End and South Boston

In what is hailed as the opening of an intensive campaign against the liquor traffic in Boston, fourteen arrests were made by the headquarters liquor squad in a series of raids in the South End and South Boston.

The liquor squad was led by Patrolman Garrett and included Patrolmen Fortin, Daley, Robinson, Wilby, Laidlow, Greene, Vance and Sheehan.

A dozen places were visited, six establishments dismantled and a quantity of contraband seized.

At a cigar store and near-beer saloon at No. 181 K street, South Boston, the raiding party claimed to have found 10 gallons of liquor. Edward A. Murphy, 30, of No. 511 West 3d street, South Boston, was arrested on the charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. The officers dismantled the bar and took the fixtures to headquarters.

They later visited a near-beer saloon at No. 370 Tremont street, where they seized eight gallons of liquor and arrested Jerome Twohig, of No. 10 West street, Roxbury; Charles Scott of No. 21 Taft street, Dorchester, and Patrick McCarthy of No. 179 Franklin street, Arlington. All three were charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

On their way down Dover street the officers saw Harry Carey of No. 821 Massachusetts avenue driving along Dover street. The officers stopped him, searched his car and seized three gallons of alleged alcohol. Carey was arrested for illegal transportation.

On a visit to the store at No. 486 Shawmut avenue, South End, the officers seized seven gallons of liquor and arrested Abraham Corb, charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale. They dismantled his bar and removed the fixtures.

Joseph Cotter of No. 203 F street, South Boston, who operates a store at No. 205 F street, was arrested, charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale. The officers said they found nine gallons in his establishments.

At No. 501 East Eighth street, South Boston, the police arrested Frank Haley on a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. They seized six gallons.

At No. 133 Silver street, South Boston, the raiding party seized 25 gallons of beer, eight gallons of alleged whiskey and a 50-gallon still in operation.

60 INDICTED IN RUM CASES IN BAY STATE

Sixty Massachusetts men are named for liquor law violations in indictments returned by the Federal grand jury. The charges include smuggling, manufacturing, possessing, transportation and selling of intoxicants.

The long list of indictments was returned after a day spent investigating the alleged Chelsea rum ring. No indictments were returned, however, against any of the Chelsea suspects. A separate report on these, it was said, would be rendered later in the week.

Charged with accepting a $800 bribe through Attorney John J. Cronin of Boston, a Federal grand jury indictment was returned against Charles Nastasi, Federal narcotic agent, who has been operating in Boston and vicinity during the past few months.

Indictments were also returned against two big figures in Boston's alleged drug ring and half a dozen less important figures containing charges of possessing or selling dope.

Nastasi was arrested by Federal officers when, it is alleged, he was caught in the act of accepting a bribe by A. D. O'Connor of Washington, a Department of Justice agent. The indictment sets forth that he bargained with Sarro Vaccarro, a government informant, to obtain a position for Vaccarro as a narcotic agent and that the $800 was the consideration involved. Attorney Cronin, acting for Vaccarro, it is stated, passed the money, while O'Connor looked on. Nastasi was held in $2,500 bonds.

TWO HUB MEN HELD FOR TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

York Beach, Me., July 30.—Salvatore Covino of No. 40 Tileston street and Julius Bentura of No. 28 Hull street, both of Boston, and William Cogswell of Portland were arrested by Federal officers after search of their automobile revealed twenty-seven gallons of alcohol. The alcohol, it is alleged, was concealed in the upholstery of the car.

TRUCKLOAD OF SEIZED LIQUOR DESTROYED

A truck load of liquor, said to have cost a New Bedford bootlegger more than $15,000, was destroyed in the rear area of the State House by employes of the State Department of Public Safety.

JUDGE FAILS TO SIGN FOR LIQUOR DESTRUCTION

Indianapolis, July 30.—A ten-day reprieve has been gained for $350,000 worth of bonded whiskey confiscated from the W. P. Squibb & Company warehouse at Lawrenceburg, Ind., and ordered destroyed by Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell. Judge Baltzell, after ruling against the Squibb company, neglected to sign the formal entry for destruction of the liquor before he left the city to be gone ten days.

RAILROAD MEN TO HOLD OUTING ON AUGUST 2

The New England Railroad Men's Outing Club, formed several years ago to promote co-operation between rail employes of all classes, will hold its seventh annual outing and clambake on August 2 at Highland Lake. A special train will leave the South Station at 9 o'clock, standard time. The committee includes J. H. Duby, chairman; T. J. Morrissey, treasurer, and J. L. Corkery, secretary.

WINSTON SAYS INCOME TAX CUT IS POSSIBLE

Washington, July 30 (A.P.)—Reduction of the Federal normal and surtaxes on income to a maximum of 25 per cent, was declared possible "from a revenue standpoint" by Acting Secretary Winston, who, in a letter to a correspondent made public here, suggested that a maximum of 20 per cent. for surtaxes was "the highest that should now be in the law."

JUDGES WORN OUT BY RUM CASE "BARGAIN WEEK"

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Three days of bargain week in Federal Court for petty liquor law violators have resulted in wearing out one judge, threaten to wear out another and netted the United States Treasury $214,000 in fines and forfeited bail bonds. Bargain week was instituted to wipe off the court calendar 2,000 liquor cases. Defendants are assured of fines not exceeding $100 if they plead guilty.

THREE FINED FOR CRUELTY TO HORSES

On charges brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, three men were fined for abusing horses.

In municipal court, Charles Sampson of No. 10 Hawley place, was fined $25 for allowing a horse with a sore beneath its collar to be worked. His driver, William H. McNeil was fined $5. Both appealed.

Joseph Drivelle of No. 139 Charles street, Cambridge, was fined $20 by Judge Stone in Cambridge court for beating his horse. According to testimony, Neal McDevitt, living next door to Drivelle, found him perched on a fence beating his horse with a shovel. McDevitt, also armed with a shovel, knocked Drivelle off the fence.

COOLIDGE GETS LINE ON MID-WEST FENCES

Senator Deneen of Illinois Is at White Court, and Congress Is the Topic

Swampscott, July 30 (A.P.).—Renewing his contact with Congressional leaders, President Coolidge had as his House guest at White Court today Senator Deneen of Illinois.

The Senator's presence afforded the executive another opportunity to glean information as to conditions in the Middle West and to discuss the legislative situation.

After the return to Mr. Coolidge and his guest to White Court from the Lake Chebacco Outing, Senator Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, joined them for dinner and a night's conference. The discussion veered to next year's Congressional elections and the necessity of the Republican's holding the lines fast in Congress, particularly in the Senate, where their pluarality is small and many of their number will be up for re-election.

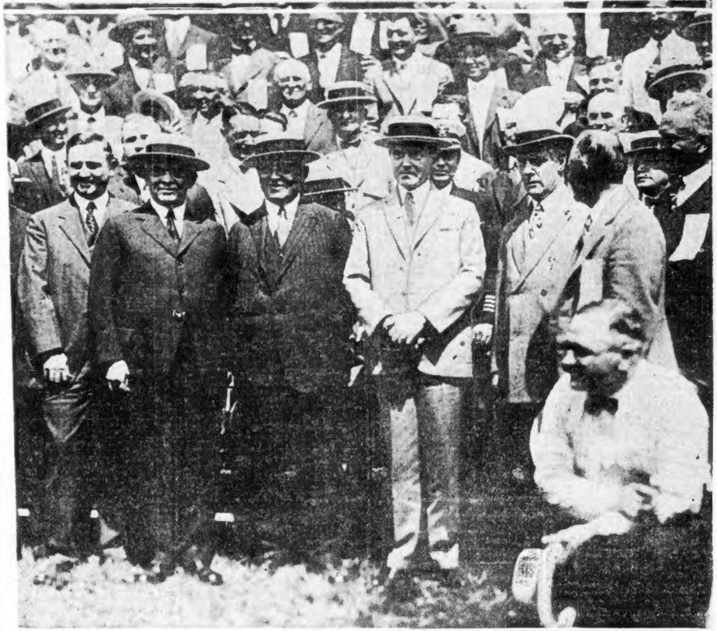
While Senator Butler has not announced whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself a year hence, it was taken for granted at the outing that he would be in the field. Governor Fuller, crediting him with placing President Coolidge in the White House, urged Republicans to line up solidly behind the Executive's friend and adviser.

Senator Butler, referring to the coming Congressional elections, declared that if the Republican victory of last year is to mean anything, the administration must be given a smashing vote of confidence at the polls in 1926.

Over the week-end the President will have as his house guest Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who will be up for re-election next year.

HAPPY HOOLIGAN GOES IN FOR THIS BOY SCOUT STUFF!—Our old friend starts out to do "one good toin" and does it, but not before he meets with a mishap or two. For details, see the wonderful 8-Page Color Comic Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, New England's Greatest Sunday Newspaper.

HAPPY GROUP OF G. O. P. LEADERS



Nothing on earth to worry these distinguished members of the Grand Old Party, assembled at the outing of the Essex County Men's Republican Club, held at Centennial Grove, Essex. According to their point of view President Coolidge is already renominated and re-elected to succeed himself. In the group above, from left to right, are Collector W. W. Lufkin, U. S. Senator Deneen of Illinois, Senator Butler of Massachusetts, President Coolidge, Senator Beveridge of Indiana, Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester. In the foreground is Edmund G. Sullivan of Salem, secretary-treasurer of the Essex County Men's Republican Club.

PROBE ALLEGED NON-UNION PAY BY CITY

Electricians' Charge Hits Work on Several New School Buildings

An investigation was under way today of charges brought by the Electrical Workers' Union 103 that a certain sub-contractor was violating city regulations by failing to pay prevailing wage rates in various city construction works.

The alleged violations, according to officers of the union, are being committed in work on several new schools, including the East Boston High School, Samuel Adams, East Boston; Roxbury High School, Washington Irving, Roslindale; Jamaica Plain High School, Quincy Market and Welfare Building, Chardon street.

Union workers, including bricklayers, iron workers, plumbers, steamfitters, painters, carpenters and laborers, working on the Newton High School's group of buildings, the Newton Technical School and the new Classical High School at Newtonville, were on strike as a protest against employment of non-union electricians.

The strike at the Classical High School of mechanics and other workers is the second within ten days for the same reason. The electrical workers struck to enforce their demand for $1.15 an hour.

Admits He Pushed Boy Into River to His Death

Bangor, Me., July 30 (A. P.).—Forrest Pond, twenty-one years old, was arrested charged with pushing James Upton, nine years old, into the water at the Bangor Yacht Club. The boy drowned.

Pond said he asked James if he could swim and, upon receiving an affirmative reply, he shoved him overboard from the pier. He said he made no effort to help him because he did not realize he was drowning. The youth was held in $2,500 bail pending hearing tomorrow.

COOLIDGE VOTE ON PEACE COURT DOWN TO 6

Swampscott, July 30.—A complete poll of the United States Senate delivered to President Coolidge within the last forty-eight hours indicates that the Administration's chances of victory on the world court have steadily slipped since Congress adjourned.

The poll shows that he has a margin of not more than six votes to spare in favor of the court. It included all the Democrats favorable to adhesion.

Before Congress adjourned the President had been given to understand that he had a large majority for the court if a vote could have been forced. The source of the latest poll was withheld, but officials here regard it as very reliable.

per money was dangerous because it had microbes on it, got this serious reply: "A commission appointed to study the question finds that microbes are rare on paper money, apparently, because microbes hate the agitation of constant transfer from one place to another."

That would not apply to the original paper dollar earned by our great millionaires, each of whom is still supposed to have the original dollar. Plenty of microbes on that immovable bill.

BUT IT IS a fact that microbes hate agitation, movement, shock. When you sneeze you kill more microbes than any train wreck ever killed of men. When you laugh you kill others.

COLONEL GILCHRIST, of the War Department has opened in New York a "get rid of your cold chlorine gas chamber."

Five at a time with colds in head, throat, lungs, anywhere, sit in the chamber, in which chlorine gas is mixed with air, breathing in the chlorine with the air.

It doesn't hurt them, but kills germs that cause colds. An absolutely certain remedy for colds might be as invaluable to the world as a sure cure for cancer. Colds weaken the system and cause deaths by diseases called by other names.

The chlorine cure does not sound unreasonable. A slap hard enough to kill a mosquito does not kill the man slapping himself. Chlorine gas strong enough to kill cold microbes need not injure the man.

LEATHER HEADS BAY STATE'S EXPORTS

Massachusetts is placed eleventh among all the States and far in the lead in New England in the value of exports during the first quarter of 1925, by the Department of Commerce, in statistics just made public.

Leather valued at $6,007,204 lead a diversity of products shipped from the Bay State.

Unmanufactured cotton, boots and shoes and cotton cloth follow in close succession.

Exports from Massachusetts were more than from all the other New England States combined, and exceeded by approximately $6,000,000 the export values of Georgia, the next ranking State.

The leading 10 States in order of their importance for the quarter were: Texas, $249,830,912; New York, $203,497,245; Pennsylvania, $81,273,804; Louisiana, $69,755,682; New Jersey, $59,523,013; California, $55,802,704; Illinois, $53,472,173; Michigan, $53,442,144; Ohio, $35,581,915, and Virginia, $31,364,311. The total export trade of the United States, including Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, and the District of Columbia, amounted to $1,250,769,000 as compared with $1,079,190,131 for the first three months of 1924, reflecting an increase of more than $170,000,000.

THINKS POSTAL BOOKS HIDE A 'GOLD MINE'

Reported Deficit Due to Old-Style Accounting System, Says a Publisher

Philadelphia, July 30 (AP).—The "postal deficit" comprises only "archaic bookkeeping" and "a state of mind," the Congressional joint subcommittee on postal rates was told here by Charles F. Jenkins, spokesman for the agricultural press and publisher of The Farm Journal.

"There is no postal deficit," Mr. Jenkins told the three senators and three representatives who constitute the sub-committee investigating the functioning of the revised postage scale throughout the large postal centers. "Archaic bookkeeping methods have been responsible for the reported postal shortage."

RAPS P. O. PHILANTHROPY.

Mr. Jenkins illustrated by citing the custom of the Post Office Department to enter all equipment expenditures under the year made instead of equally distributed over the several years of the equipment endurance. He said the rural free delivery system is being constantly extended, too, but that extensions should rightfully be financed by special appropriations rather than put onto postal rates.

"The Post Office Department must be divorced from philanthropy," declared Mr. Jenkins. "If beneficences are extended certain preferred users of the mails such as religious, scientific and educational journals, the same privilege should be extended to all journals. Treat all alike and make all periodicals pay postage on the same basis."

POST CARDS DROP OFF.

W. R. Herb, Philadelphia, distributor of post cards, told the committee the orders for illustrated cards thus far in 1925 had totaled less than 25 per cent. of the 1924 orders for the same period. The Post Office Department, he said, would lose severely from these decreases because of the added postage.

Charles L. Kinsley, president of the Philadelphia Typothetae, said that printers face heavy reverses from loss of mail circulation of pamphlets and catalogs as a result of the revised postage scale.

U. S. ASKS CHINA TO PUNISH KIDNAPERS

Facts in Dr. Howard's Case Laid Before Foreign Minister at Pekin

Washington, July 30 (AP).—Assistance of the Chinese Government in apprehending brigands who are holding for ransom Dr. Harvey J. Howard, American citizen connected with the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking, has been asked by Minister MacMurray at Peking.

The State Department received a dispatch from Mr. MacMurray stating he had presented all facts in the case to the Chinese foreign office, and requested withdrawal to a place of safety of other persons who were visiting the Manchurian ranch of Morgan Palmer, a native of New York state, at the time Dr. Howard was kidnaped and Mr. Palmer killed.

Punishment of the brigands also was asked by Mr. MacMurray, who said no news had been received from the kidnapers except a note demanding ransom "in the form of money and bullets," although no amount was stipulated.

Old Dutch Ships Dug Up Under New York

New York, July 30 (A. P.).—In excavating for the foundations of the new Seamen's Church Institute in South street, a buried ship, the second in two days, was discovered.

The ship was a finely-constructed forty-foot sloop. Oak-built details of construction, particularly the use of wooden pegs instead of nails, marked her as belonging to the early Dutch period. She was found at the 30-foot level and was so rotted that she broke up quickly.

The first ship was found 25 feet deep. She had apparently been buried in the mud more than a hundred years.

PASTOR OF "DUMBBELL" SERMON WON'T RESIGN

Rochester, N. H., July 30.—The Rev. J. Sherman Lounsbury, pastor of the Advent Christian Church, who, criticising his congregation, was quoted as saying they "acted like a lot of dumbbells," will not resign Aug. 31 as announced.

Officials of the church declared the pastor had reconsidered his resignation and would remain. It was further stated that he had apologized to the congregation for his criticism, directed at members who were charged with laughing, talking and giggling during the sermons.

ROBBERY BALKS BUSINESS GIFT TO WORKERS

Trusted Employe's Thefts Discovered as Transfer Is About to Be Made

New York, July 30 (A. P.).—On the eve of his retirement, when his fur business would have passed into the hands of employes, Max Cohen, president of the M. Cohen & Bros., furriers, discovered that the man who was to take over control of the business, John Dingfelder, had been robbing him for five years.

The thefts had so weakened the company, Cohen said, that he had been obliged to postpone his retirement indefinitely.

The story of Dingfelder's betrayal of the trust reposed in him by the man who, thirty years ago, started him at $4 a week, slowly increasing his salary until it reached $9,000, was disclosed by Cohen in General Sessions Court, where Dingfelder was arraigned for robbery.

Dingfelder was sentenced to from six months to three years in the penitentiary, Judge Mancuso recommending the maximum penalty in denying a commutation of sentence.

Max Ackerman, his accomplice, also an employe, received a similar sentence. The fur thefts were said to reach into thousands of dollars.

Osgood had complained of not feeling well a few hours before. Police ordered the body removed to Southern Mortuary, where an autopsy will be performed. As far as could be learned, Osgood had no relatives.

'PANTS ROBBER' STIRS MALDEN; FOUR VICTIMS

Police Have No Clew as Valuables Are Taken From Pockets

Malden police were today confronted with one of the greatest mysteries they have ever been called upon to solve.

The officers are trying to find a new kind of thief who goes into an apartment through an open window, enters the bedroom of his intended victim and works so quickly and quietly that the victim knows nothing about his predicament until he awakes in the morning.

In three hours time the Malden police were called upon four times to find this mysterious pants pocket theif who had entered four homes, in the Faulkner section of the city, had gone to where the victim was sleeping and had removed all of his money.

The first victim was Samuel Sandler, of No. 184 Essex street, Malden. He reports that some time after he retired and before 4 a. m. a man entered through an open window and removed $70 and some change from his pants pocket and made his escape. He said he did not see the robber.

A few moments later Joseph Winer called upon the police for assistance. He told the officers that someone had gone to his apartment and to his bedside while he slept and had taken $21 from his pocket. He, too, reported that he did not see or hear the robber.

Next came Hyman Klasner of No. 131 Harvard street, Malden Hyman had about the same story to tell that the robber had entered his home, which is in the first floor of a three-apartment house and had removed from his pocket $33 and change and got away.

Just before 7 o'clock, the police phone rang again, Barnard Winer of No. 13 Harvard street, had the same story as the others except his loss consisted only of a two-dollar bill.

Woman, 105, Today Asked Coolidge to Party

Newark, N. J., July 30 (A. P.). —Mrs. Gute Fox, the oldest woman in the Harlem home of the Daughters of Israel, on the eve of her 105th birthday, received a reply to an invitation she had sent to President Coolidge to attend and eat of her cake bearing 105 candles.

The answer by telegraph was: "The President greatly appreciates your invitation and sends congratulations and good wishes upon your birthday."

JOB GETTING LATEST HUB SWINDLE

Jamaica Plain Woman Fleeced of $9 by Glib Stranger

One of the meanest swindles called to the attention of the police was reported by Mrs. Alexander Rich of No. 32 Minden street, Jamaica Plain Drawn into conversation by a smooth-tongued stranger, she admitted she wished to find employment for her sixteen-year-old son.

He represented himself as an agent of the New Haven.

"I told him I had a sixteen-year-old boy who needed work," said Mrs. Rich, "and he accompanied me to my home in Jamaica Plain."

The stranger gave my son a piece of scrap paper on which was scrawled in pencil, "Miss Ryan—Kindly admit bearer to work for me. Thank you in advance, Harry Levin, Supervisor." He then explained that, although the company provided a uniform, a small deposit would be required.

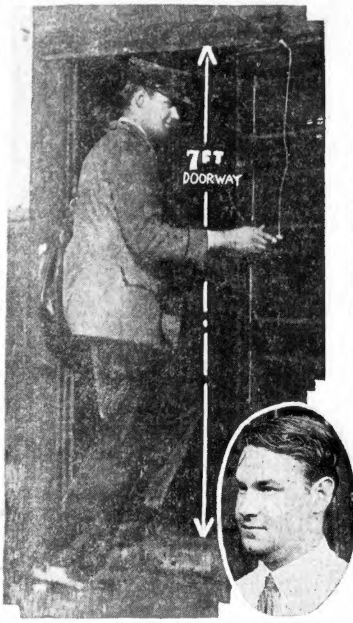
Mrs. Rich gave her son $9.60 required for the deposit, and when they reached the South Station the stranger gave Sammy a dime and told him to get his shoes shined while he attended to the matter of a uniform. Sammy handed over the money, and the stranger vanished.

TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH NOBODY SAW

Raymond T. Colley, 76 Rice street, Cambridge, and Joseph Santory of No. 359 Beacon street, Somerville, were seriously injured when their automobile crashed into a pole on Ocean avenue, Revere.

Both were made unconscious. Police could not determine the cause of the accident as no one saw it.

SECOND FLOOR MAIL BOXES---WHY NOT?



"Al" Johnson, a West Somerville mail carrier and the pride of the district, spends most of his time "ducking" ordinary doorways, just because he's 7 feet and 1 inch tall. Seems as though 'twould be easier to drop the letters in second-story windows. Photos show how "Al" runs a risk, and the face depicts the health of his 218 pounds, nourished by oatmeal and milk.

THEATRE FOLK EAGER TO AID POLICE FUND

In a rush of sympathy, a veritable rain of mail is pouring in upon those arranging the monster, all-star entertainment on the night of August 7 for the widow of Police Inspector Benjamin Alexander, left alone to care for six children.

The deluge is from the men and women of the stage—personages who play at laughter and tears in the sight of audiences, but who live them alone, just as you and I, with none to watch but themselves.

Somehow, the closer a person gets to theatre folk, the more he understands their never-failing generosity and sacrifice in a matter like the tragedy that has befallen Inspector Alexander and his sorrowing family.

From all New England are coming offers by vaudeville and other stage people to go on at Waldron's Casino in the benefit arranged as part of the Alexander Fund sponsored by the Boston Evening American.

More complete announcements as to the program will be made from day to day, but even now the list is a formidable one, and coupled with other varieties of entertainments will go to make perhaps the best program of variety ever unrolled before a Boston audience.

KLAN PARADE AT CAPITAL IS "LOCAL"

Washington, July 30 (A. P.).—L. A. Mueller, in charge of the Ku Klux Klan parade to be held here, August 8, announced it would be "but a local affair" with about 5,000 Klansmen participating. He denied having stated that approximately 150,000 were expected to take part.

"No large group of Klansmen," he said in a statement, "are expected in Washington. I make this statement officially so that the public will be made aware of the facts concerning the parade. The parade has no National significance."

BIGGEST MAIL MAN LIVES ON OATMEAL

West Somerville Carrier Is Beyond Seven Feet and Weighs 218

We present herewith Boston's tallest and biggest mailman, Alfred Johnson of 107 Hillsdale road, West Somerville, who measures every inch of his seven feet and one inch and weighs every ounce of his two hundred eighteen pounds.

Modestly disclaiming any hankering to compete with Barnum and Bailey rivals, "Al," as his West Somerville postman friends call him, uses his seven feet to advantage every day sorting mail in ordinary unreachable pigeon-holes and being an unmistakable sign on the horizon to anxious waiters for letters.

When West Somerville parents send little brother out to watch for the mail man there's no doubting the youngster's call: "Here comes Al—I can hear him and see him coming behind the ice-man."

MILK AND OATMEAL DID IT.

A chip of the old block is Postman Johnson, whose father scales the no mean height of six feet and two, and whose arrival in America straight from Sweden betokens the Viking blood that courses through his son and heir's veins.

"Milk and oatmeal did it," grinned the blue-clad giant as he hoisted his bulky pouch upon his arm and pulled his cap over his eyes, preparatory to squeezing his inches and pounds through an ordinary doorway.

"I just shot up when I was a young kid and I've been tall ever since. The exercise I get every day delivering mail helps to keep the pounds down a bit, but I can't do anything to keep my height down."

AN ATHLETE TOO.

It's been only three years that "Al" Johnson, Boston's mailman Goliath, has worn the blue of Uncle Sam's letter carriers. His height belies his years, for previous to that he was a student in the Cambridge high schools.

For nine years Johnson was chief "batter-up" for Randolph school nines before he entered Cambridge High. But "daily dozens" on his route twice a day have superseded the young giant's prowess on the diamond, he states.

"Yes, it's all in the day's work," said Johnson, as he ducked his head to deliver a postcard through a stately doorway, but found no difficulty engineering a friendly smile along at the same time.

Hub's Location Determined by Savants

According to the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, the exact location of the apex of the State House dome is latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds; longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds.

Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome, Italy; Sofia, Bulgaria, and Mukden, Manchuria. Its longitude is nearly that of Quebec; Bogota, Colombia, and Santiago, Chile.

Waterville, Me., July 30.—Edward Folsom, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Folsom of Peoria, Ill., was drowned at Troutdale today, and his playmate, Shirley Richardson, ten-year-old daughter of Mrs. Maude Richardson, nearly lost her life in trying to save him. The children were playing on a wharf when Edward lost his balance and fell in.

RIFFS PLAN BIG ATTACK UPON 'HOLY CITY'

Abd-el-Krim Gets Ready to Play Their Last Card Against French

Fes, French Morocco, July 30 (A. P.).—Abd-el-Krim, directing the plans of the rebellious Riffian tribesmen, is getting ready to play his last card in the shape of a drive on the Holy City of Quezzah, about sixty miles northwest of his objective, Fes.

The French command, however, is doing everything necessary to deal with the expected drive, speeding reinforcements to vital points, posting heavy artillery around Quezzan, constructing defenses and placing squadrons of tanks and armored cars in centers from which they can be despatched rapidly wherever they are needed.

LYNN BANS MARRIED GIRL TEACHERS

Lt. Wood's 'High Life' Leads to Divorce Action

A Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure, Mystery, and Intrigue That Every-One Will Want to Read

SALLY MEREDITH, nervy niece of

M. FREDERICK LASALLE, war gas inventor, is intrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed by one not in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMITAGE, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enter the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lazare, the Goggled Terror. Lazare attempts to terririze Sally, but fails. Sally's jailers learn from spies that Bill is coming to search Etta's house, the prison. Etta pretends to let Sally escape so that they may recapture her when Bill goes. Bill finds Lasalle.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Gregor came to them, guided by the flash of the torches. He showed no surprise, but stood stolidly a yard away from the odd group and waited for his orders, as no doubt he would have waited in a burning house or on a sinking ship. Lazare spoke to him in Russian.

"Have you anything to report?"

And for the first time Sally heard the man speak.

"There is a car in the lane," he said.

"Where?"

"It is not Le Noir's car?"

"No."

"You are sure?"

"Yes."

Lazare touched Bill with his foot again.

"So that's how you came, my friend," he said. "Well, it's easier to get in than out again." Then he turned back again to Gregor.

"Untie his feet. He can walk to the house. You will hold his arm and guide him and Nadine will come behind with the pistol. It's time we were out of this. I will go first."

As Bill Armitage tramped back up the sloping path maddening thoughts rushed through his mind. A wild desire to make a dash for it, a realization of the hopelessness of such an attempt, Sally's nearness, her piteous plight, a raging contempt for the ease with which he had fallen into a trap. These thoughts and others as uncheerful were him wretched company.

As they came up the flagged path to the open door they could see that Etta Shaw was pacing the lighted hall within. Once and then again she crossed the doorway, moving with quick, aimless steps, and as she passed her lips moved and her voice sounded monotonously. Sascha stood at the stair foot, his arm thrown about the newel post and his face hidden.

As Lazare came into the hall Etta [illegible] cried out and stood staring.

"Open the dining room door," Lazare ordered. "The lights—put the lights on. Do you expect me to see in the dark?"

He loosed Sally into the armchair at the foot of the table and she huddled in it, her eyes closed.

Etta looked away from her, moving nervously, but Lazare was between her and that pitiful figure. With averted eyes and in a low, hurried voice she said:

"There's been a telephone call."

Lazare held up his hand, went quickly to the door and shut it, leaving Bill in the hall with Nadine and Gregor. Then as he turned:

"Who rang up?"

In a whisper, the answer:

"Le Noir."

"What did he want?"

Etta moved again. Her back was to Sally now. It was easier to speak. From where she first stood she could see, not Sally's face, but one of her hands lying palm upwards on the drenched woolen skirt. She did not like to see Sally's hand. It was easier to speak when she could not see it.

"He wanted—oh, I don't know. I think he wanted to know what happened after we left."

"He was ringing from London?"

"I—I think so."

"Well, what did you say?"

"I—I said you were out. I didn't know what to say. I was afraid. I said I thought he had better ring up again. I said—"

Lazare swore.

"You said! Who cares what you said? What did he say, Le Noir?"

"He said—he said—oh, Lazare, you frighten me—don't look at me like that—[illegible]—Oh, he said he would ring up—at least I think——"

Her voice trailed away and ceased, and sharp across its last vague murmur there came the ring of the telephone bell.

Lazare made a stride towards the instrument, then turned, flung the door wide open and called to Nadine.

"Here, give your pistol Gregor and come and take this call. I think I know who it is, but it's better to be on the safe side. Gregor, if he moves shoot at once."

Bill stood quite still. His rage was under control; his mind busy, searching desperately for something, anything, which might be turned to advantage. Nadine passed into the dining room and shut the door. As she turned Lazare in passing he said very low, "It's probably Le Noir. Just make sure, and then I'll speak to him."

Sally had not moved within, but the sound of the telephone bell had

TRIED TO KEEP BOND CHARGE SECRET

Charged with extortion of a $50 Liberty bond, through an agent, from the proprietoress of a liquor nuisance on Revere Beach boulevard, Lieutenant Thomas O'Hara of the Revere police has been suspended from duty as head of the Revere liquor squad. O'Hara, although suspended, still retains his lieutenancy in the force.

The charge against the "dry" raider was preferred by Mayor John E. Walsh, acting on "secret information."

Effort was made to keep the matter secret until a public hearing of the case before the Mayor in the Revere City Hall at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Mayor Walsh appointed Lieutenant O'Hara chief of the liquor squad shortly upon his assuming the mayoralty office last February. Lieutenant O'Hara, quoted at his home, No. 27 Jarvin avenue, Revere, made a sweeping denial.

"When the right time comes at the hearing before Mayor Walsh," he said, "I shall prove these charges untrue. I have been on the Revere police force for 19 years. There is no mark against my record during all that time. I didn't even know that Mayor Walsh suspended me from my duties on the liquor squad, except that today I have been assigned to investigate some six [illegible] against the city, which, of course, has nothing to do with the liquor situation."

[illegible] Walsh indicated that the [illegible] that the charges are made is [illegible] the slightest indication that [illegible] will be substantially main[illegible]" at the hearing.

ALDEN DESCENDANTS IN ANNUAL REUNION

The oldest member present was A. A. Baker, ninety, of Colchester, Ct., and the youngest John Alden, seven months, of Hyde Park.

WIFE SEES HUSBAND SLAIN

Assassins Find They Killed Wrong Man After Hammer Crime

New York, July 30 (Universal).—While his wife and her year-old baby, both bound and gagged by portieres, looked on helplessly from another bed, two men, armed with hammers, beat Louis Leonardi, 41 years old, to death in a third floor apartment.

The slayers gained access to Leonardi's home by a fire escape. While he slept they seized his wife, lashed her to the bed and warned:

"You shut your mouth—or we'll kill you, too!"

Then they advanced on the sleeping Leonardi. A rain of hammer blows—their victim's skull was crushed like an egg shell.

As they started to leave, one of the men, halting near the foot of the [illegible], turned and looked back for a final peer at the dead man.

"My God, Jimmie, we've croaked the wrong guy," he muttered as they hurried from the place.

Police believe the murderers entered the wrong apartment; that they sought a man who lived on another floor of the building.

M'DONALD LOSES FIGHT AGAINST BRITISH NAVY

London, July 30 (A. P.).—The former Labor Premier Ramsay MacDonald made strenuous efforts to secure passage by the House of Commons of an amendment condemning the government's cruiser building program, but the government's stand was approved when the proposal was rejected by a vote of 278 to 145. He contended it was unnecessary to inflict an additional expenditure of $290,000,000 on an already overburdened country, adding that there was absolutely nothing to indicate a war for many years. He deprecated any suggestion that the United States and Japan were possible enemies.

It is alleged the Polish soldiers crossed the frontier and dragged the body to their side, leaving it in the frontier zone. The Soviet Foreign Commissariat has made a protest to the Polish legation. The case will be brought before the Mixed Commission, which is to leave shortly for the Polish frontier to inquire into frontier disputes.

BOB FISHER TO BE BIG NOISE AT HARVARD

CRITICS ARE MUCH IN WRONG

University Coaches to Meet Soon and Lay the Plans for Stepping Out on Gridiron

By NICK FLATLEY

Football is just around the corner. [illegible] are lining things up for the Fall campaign. The young men who will kick and run and tackle are beginning to get in shape. [illegible]

Much rumor and gossip has whizzed around regarding the coaching situation. It has been said, openly enough, that Daly would be the boss, Bob Fisher the leader in name only. That's all wrong. [illegible]

[illegible] The practice of going out and getting athletes from the prep schools has been frowned on. It's supposed to be barred at other colleges, too, though as a matter of fact, it isn't. [illegible]

"We had pretty good material last year," explains Fisher. "If the [illegible] we had at the start could have gone through, we would have made a mighty good showing. [illegible]"

[illegible] Miller is expected to deliver in large portions this Fall. [illegible]

[illegible] The major, one of the greatest quarterbacks, has kept pace with the modern game. He knows the latest stuff, and knows how to develop it. He is the type of assistant coach that Fisher has [illegible] several years—a chap with the knowledge and the driving power to enforce it.

If the major can make the boys [illegible] football and [illegible] the Harvard teams [illegible] of shock and conflict [illegible] at Harvard. They're not making the rugged tough young men who were so frequent some [illegible] years ago.

HERSEY, 19, BOUND FOR HEIGHTS

Winthrop B. Hersey, nineteen years old, of Wellesley, who fought Ouimet in the recent State championship, will be a golf king some day. He has ability, courage, determination and brilliance. He has a golf course two hops from his home and he has been swinging clubs since he was knee high to a caddie. [illegible] close-up photo shows just what sort of a youngster he is.

Maybe it's the difference in the [illegible]

[illegible] but I am accepting your offer with the one thought in mind that perhaps you someday will go in for pigeon racing. You know, Al, you release those babies and wait four or five days for a return. That's the way I want my excitement.

I WANT to make a few corrections in your statements about my [illegible] Tiger [illegible] no English [illegible] everything though, for he has just finished a six months' course at one of our celebrated institutions.

You know, Al, they never allow [illegible]

SOX IN THIRD GAME WITH INDIANS

A team that's down is always out before the game starts. That's the trouble with the Red Sox. The Fenway athletes believe that fortune and the world is against them. They have grown accustomed to defeat. They expect it and get it. Just now the Cleveland Indians, not so much of a ball club, look like world champions playing against the Fobls.

They have won two lop-sided pastimes, and unless something happens to the natives [illegible] a [illegible] Howard [illegible] knocked over Manager Fohl's strongest hope [illegible] with men on bases. He was [illegible] lackadaisical pitching to Mauer [illegible] mound enemy [illegible] made four hits [illegible]

Red Wingfield was due to pitch for the Sox this afternoon [illegible] the biggest [illegible] was ticketed to southpaw for the hostiles. This Buckeye [illegible] was a professional [illegible] large league baseball. He was doing a little semi-pro [illegible] good to a scout who happened to watch him. Now he has a regular pitching assignment. He [illegible] and is a colorful bird.

SCARBORO CLUB MUST HAVE NEW BLOOD

There are any number of boys [illegible] in a position to join one of the expensive golf clubs who would only welcome an opportunity to play for Scarboro.

One of the best looking young golfers in Massachusetts is Jimmie Conroy, another Brookline boy. It is doubtful if there is a boy in the State who shows any more promise of going right to the top in golf than Conroy, and this statement goes for Eddie Martin, the sixteen-year-old sensation from the [illegible] River Country Club, Win[illegible], who was the runner up to Francis Ouimet in the State amateur championship, Joe Batchelder, captain of the Dartmouth golf team, Ralph Mun[illegible], the junior champion and Charlie Grasse, from Mt. [illegible]

The golf that Jimmie Conroy played in the Massachusetts junior championship was real golf from the qualifying round to the [illegible] green of [illegible] where he was beaten by Ralph M[illegible], who went through and won the title.

The Scarboro [illegible] would get a real golfer if they [illegible] Conroy to play for them. If Conroy was able to get in some golf every day he would develop very rapidly. As it is, he has not played since [illegible] at the [illegible] Country Club.

BRAVES OUT TO HALT RUSH OF PIRATES

Pittsburgh, July 31.—A report that Johnny Cooney would be the Boston pitcher to go to Brooklyn at the end of the season in payment for Andy High, was denied emphatically by Manager Bancroft today.

"Cooney will not be traded to Brooklyn or anybody else," said Banny. "That story is ridiculous. Cooney is one of the greatest pitchers in the league and in addition is the best fielder and best hitter among the league hurlers. He was hit hard yesterday but any pitcher is sure to have an off day occasionally. We took High at the waiver price. I think he will hit [illegible] We are trying him at third where Marriott failed as a hitter and Padgett cannot do as a fielder. Marriott will find himself again."

SOLOMON DISPLAYS GREAT SPEED IN GYM

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Sox Need Pep.
Our Amateurs.
Public Golf Links.
Rickard Has Vision.

By NICK FLATLEY

WE met one of the chronic fans this morning. He was a bit down[illegible].

"What do you think of those Red Sox?" he asked. "They look like an undertaker's convention. They haven't any more pep than a bunch of kids going back to school the day after playing hookey. The infielders wave at the grounders. The boys act as if they were punching the clock. It's all right to watch them get a kick, but it isn't all right to have them stagger around as if they hated it."

Nick Flatley

Which isn't a bad summing up of one of the team's principal troubles. The players are "down" as the expression goes, meaning they have lost all confidence in themselves. There's hope for them still if they show a spirit and determination to give everything in a fight against a cruel fate. They should do that little thing, because they continue to be paid the first and fifteenth of each month. The fans who would go out to see them scrap and try would help to pay those salaries. But the fans will turn to golf or the beaches if the sterling athletes continue in their semi-somnolent state.

MURCHISON and Paddock, two great sprinters, are returning to this country after a tour of alien tracks. They come in sort of a shadow. There has been considerable criticism of their expense accounts and amateurism on the other side. The matter is being "investigated." Which means that everything will be declared all right.

Our modern champions, who get no money but still can tour the world, are quite likely to quit any time. And then where would American supremacy be? The real amateur, who has to pay attention to such plebian matters as buying the daily groceries and the personal scenery, has mighty little chance to reach the pinnacle. He hasn't time.

We would be much more honest with ourselves and the world if we put this amateur athlete business in the list of new professions. A regular scale of expense accounts, varying with ability of the athlete, would save lots of worry and bother.

BOSTON needs more municipal golf courses. The city is years behind other villages in the matter of providing pastures for the growing throng of divot diggers. There are half a dozen public courses in Chicago. New York has as many. Boston has one, Franklin Park. More than 2000 players go there each week.

Five times as many would appear if there was room. Last Saturday 500 went away from the first tee. Golf isn't exactly a necessity, but it's a fine thing for the man or woman who wants light exercise in the open air. It means as much to the community as any one of a dozen things which inhale the public funds.

A NEW Madison Square Garden, the world's biggest sport arena, is going up in New York. Almost $5,000,000 has been subscribed for the building of it by big New York bankers looking for a fat investment. Sport pays big dividends. The Boston Arena, for instance, paid for itself in three or four years. The ordinary real estate investment takes much more than double that time to reward the investors. The new Madison Square owner will be on velvet, as they say, after two or three championship fights have been held.

Tex Rickard, man of vision, is behind the plan. He saw to it that the new building was big enough to hold any kind of a crowd. He will clean up the capital in a year or so. In ten years he will make a million dollars for himself. That's what the combination of brains and proper perspective can do.

A GOLFER with a wooden leg gets into the final rounds at the Wentworth Hotel open at Portsmouth, N. H. Price McQuillen of Philadelphia lost a leg in the World War, but he didn't let it discourage him. He was a good golfer before the injury and he's better now.

Any handicap can be overcome with persistent trying. Demosthenes, greatest orator of all time, stuttered. He filled his mouth with pebbles and made speeches to the sea waves [illegible]. Jim Corbett, heavyweight champion, went through a title bout with a broken hand. He had determination. [illegible] quarterback of [illegible] Indiana, broke a rib in the first play of a game, yet carried through and was a star till the last whistle. Food for thought when you consider those boys, and the young men of today, who rush to the doctors with a hangnail or a stubbed toe.

'KING' VERY CONFIDENT OF WINNING

Big Demand for Tickets for Friday Night's Clash Record Crowd Expected

By RINGSIDE.

King Solomon is in very good shape for Jack Sharkey. He will bring his whole flock of tricks, and all his power into the ring at Braves Field tomorrow night. We watched the King box three fast rounds at Marty Fitzgerald's gym. And he was fast. His target was Clemente Saavedra, a wild calf of the Pampas. Clemente thought he had fallen under a stampede.

King Solomon popped him plenty. He directed most of his attention to body blows, as he figures that Sharkey's weakest spot is just below the chest. The Kink, through his manager, admits that he will beat Sharkey by several miles if he doesn't flatten him.

"Sharkey," chirps the Kink's loud speaker, "cannot take it in the stomach. I saw Maloney get him with a body attack and watched Rojas knock him the same way. There's more kick to Solomon's punch than there is to Maloney's and after Jack takes a few he'll think his spine is a sickle.

"Solomon showed in the Maloney fight that he can stand a bumping. Jimmy hit him with everything, but the King was still going at top speed at the finish. And Maloney can hit harder than Sharkey.

"We want another Maloney battle here. We got the worst of that decision in our opinion. Next time there'll be no room for doubt. And you don't imagine we would have signed up with Sharkey if we weren't sure we could lick him."

The "we," of course, is just a figure of speech which the managers use to show the boys they are standing back of them. They do stand back, so far that no stray blows are likely to sock them. But that's apart from the present quarrel.

Solomon thinks he's cleverer than Sharkey and Jack believes he's niftier than the Kink, so there will be a lot of science flying around the ring in the early moments. After the young men discover what's what they will do a lot of real fighting.

Both are good hitters, better than they ever appeared to be against Maloney. The fame of Jimmy's dynamite punch had both of them very wary. They were afraid to take a full blow for fear of running foul of a hostile uppercut. Neither has any too much respect for the other's punching power in this particular [illegible] which makes for a fine, sturdy battle.

Solomon will do a little boxing this afternoon, and Sharkey will follow the same program. Jack is as strong as he ever was in his life, has been working with fast, shifty kids as well as heavies. His stretch of conditioning has oiled him up perfectly.

Neither Sharkey nor Solomon has fought since them bumped into Maloney. Jack was fouled and spent a week recovering. The Kink has had a couple of weeks to recover from the thumping Jimmy handed out, and apparently is just as good as new.

There's a great demand for tickets, and the crowd, with a good evening, will equal the famous Legion gathering. One of the great things about the ball park is that the seats are numerous and no customer needs to be turned away.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions
"Golf's Most Successful Teacher,"
Says Chick Evans.

In the backward and the forward swing of the golf club the clubhead describes one arc while the hands describe a second, or inner arc. The most effective method is to keep these arcs together, and I urge the player to delay wrist action in the back swing for that purpose. If the wrists break, the clubhead back [illegible] the ball quickly, it is obvious that the arc of the hands [illegible] step with [illegible] described by the clubhead. [illegible] of the back swing [illegible] hands have been kept together all the way up the clubhead has a tendency to break [illegible] the top. It should break [illegible] some but this turn [illegible] should be held somewhat in check, so that it comes to a stop just short of a parallel position across the shoulders. Reach out with the arms in starting back.

RUNYON SAYS

Tunney Big Enough.
Size Versus CLASS.
Class Makes It Even.
Wills eMt Small 'Uns.
The Great Jack Dillon.

By Damon Runyon

ONE of the writer's ablest contemporaries, arguing that Mr. Jack Dempsey should meet Mr. Harry Wills, remarks that the pugilistic populace wouldn't care to see Mr. Wills engaging Mr. Gene Tunney, the celebrated ex-marine, because of the disparity in size.

He thinks that Mr. Wills is too big for Mr. Tunney, to which Mr. Tunney might respond with the historic remark attributed to Robert Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy, Jim Figg, Blink McCloskey and other noted characters of Fistiana, "The bigger they are the higher they bounce."

Damon Runyon

AS against Mr. Wills' 210 pounds and 6 feet 3 inches, Mr. Tunney weighs about 185 pounds and stands an eve 6 feet. Mr. [illegible] in condition is ten pounds heavier and an inch and a half taller.

If Mr. Wills is too big for Mr. Tunney, what is to be said of the idea of matching Harry Greb, the middleweight, against Dempsey? And yet you will find a large number of very sage pugilistic observers who are willing to wager that "The Pittsburgh Windmill" will not only stick ten rounds with the heavyweight champion of the world but has a good chance of out-flapping him.

IF Mr. Wills is too big for Mr. Tunney it seems strange that no [illegible] had the same thought with reference to Mr. Kid Norfolk, Mr. Tut Jackson, Mr. Jeff Clark, Mr. Charles Weinert and Mr. Bartley Madden when they were matched with Mr. Wills.

Here are the dimensions of these gentlemen:

Kid Norfolk, 5 feet, 8 inches, 175 pounds.

Tut Jackson, 6 feet, 175 pounds.

Charley Weinert, 5 feet, 11 inches, 183 pounds.

Bartley Madden, 5 feet, 11 inches, 18[illegible] pounds.

Jeff Clark, 5 feet, 10 inches, 16[illegible] 170 pounds.

THE industrious Harry Greb stands 5 feet, 8½ inches and has never weighed much over 170 pounds. He is just twice as good a fighter at 160 pounds as he is at the higher mark—just twice as good.

Harry Greb is one of the greatest fighters that ever laced on a pair of gloves. His record proves this statement. And it happens that one of the few men who have beaten him to a decision is Mr. Gene Tunney, which feat alone argues Tunney a great fighter.

JACK DEMPSEY weighed around 185 pounds the day he whipped the ponderous Jess Willard at Toledo. Willard was at least sixty pounds heavier than Dempsey and five inches taller.

The writer believes that pugilistic class equalizes size. One of the greatest fighters of the past twenty years was smaller than Greb; yet the writer believes this fighter would have given Dempsey a tough battle. He is Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis.

Dillon in fighting trim stood 5 feet 7½ inches and weighed about 165 pounds. He was a better fighter, in the opinion of the writer, than Georges Carpentier, who weighed something like 172 pounds the day he fought Dempsey and looked like a lily alongside an oak.

DILLON, whose right name is Ernest Cutler Price for a time was recognized as light-heavyweight champion, but Dillon paid scant attention to the title. He fought two or three a month for years, and never bothered about his opponents.

Middleweights, light heavies, heavyweights—they were all the same to the "Man Mauler."

HE beat the giant Andre Anderson, he stopped Charley Weinert in two rounds. He fought Gunboat Smith, Jim Flynn, Jack Lester, Frank Farmer, Bill Miske, Tom McMahon and many others who outweighed him.

He was a good boxer, a stout hitter. The fact that Harry Greb used to hold him about even is further evidence of Greb's ability. Ten years from now this Greb will be a bigger figure in American Fistiana when men are talking about great fighters than he is today.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB HOLDS RACE SERIES

By GEORGE W. GRIMM,
Yachting Editor.

Brotherly love is put to test when the starting gun sends the Quincy Yacht Club fleet of 15 foot catboats scudding over the line every Saturday afternoon.

Among the skippers are probably no keener rivals that Jimmy Lecain and his kid brother, George, 17 years old, who this season made his debut as a full fledged pilot with a boat of his own.

Jimmy sails the Jumbo as ably and successfully as in other years, while George is at the helm of the Niacel.

George has the support of his family [illegible] as well [illegible] parents, for they have offered him an additional prize for every time he crosses the judge's boat ahead of big brother. It makes no difference where George finishes as long as he beats Jim, he gets the family prize.

Colts Active at Endicott Today

By GUS DALY

Endicott, N. Y., July 30.—Four events are down for decision at the Ideal Park track this afternoon. All are stakes races, one for two-year-old trotters, with a $2,000 value, one for the three-year-old trotters, with the same value, and those for 2:22 trotters and the 2:15 pacers.

Some fine youngsters are engaged in both of the colt races. The Boston owned Bright Dawn is looked upon as the winner in the two-year-old stake, while Harrison Dillon, who raced to a track record for three-year-olds at Greenfield last week, seems best in a field of ten young crackerjacks in his event.

The 2:12 trot and the 2:15 pace events have large fields and some racers of high class are slated to take the word in each.

Yesterday's splendid program was enjoyed by 15,000 enthusiasts.

The 2:09 stake trot for $5,000 was won by Oscawanna.

Bee Worthy won her fourth straight victory in the 2:12 stake trot, while Tommy Berry had his pacer Peter Etawah right and beat Jennie H and a fast bunch in the 2:10 stake pace.

WOMEN IN SEMI-FINALS AT TEDESCO

The gallery at the North Shore championship tennis tournament at Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott, should see a real contest today with Mrs. J. D. Cobiera of Southboro, meeting Mrs. Robert Griswold of Boston in the semi-final round of the women's singles which was to start at 10:30 a. m. The other semi-final match finds Mrs. Seth Crawford playing Miss Polly Palfrey of Longwood, joint holder of the junior doubles State title.

Members of the Tedesco club celebrated "Tennis Night" last evening. After dinner, the tennis committee, showed slow motion pictures of Helen Wills, of California, William T. Tilden and many other stars. Steward Fred Taylor, who has been at the club for twenty years, served a special dinner to an even two hundred members and friends.

PAIR OF LOCAL GAMES ON 'TWI' PROGRAM

By JOE CASHMAN.

Another quartet of "Twi" League tilts is down to be completed this p. m. with the South End, Malden, Graniteville and Nashua as the latter grounds.

Salem and Checker will be the opposing factions at the Walpole street grounds. Dilboy and Malden will furnish the fireworks at Ferryway Green, Manchester and Abbot will square off at Graniteville and Lawrence and Nashua will string at each other in the New Hampshire city.

No successor to Harold Janvrin, who yesterday resigned as manager of the Checker nine, has been named as yet but a new pilot will in all probability be nominated before the "Cabbies" take the field against the "Witches."

The directors of the South End aggregation needn't look far for a new skipper. There are several players right in their fold who have all the necessary qualifications to become successful leaders.

Regardless of who receives the appointment, however, the club will not emerge from its present slump unless a few reliable hurlers are immediately added to the roster. Janny realized this fact and explained it to the directors. When they made no attempt to secure the needed box strength, the former Red Sox star handed in his resignation.

All of Malden went over to Somerville last evening and tonight the Somerville fans will beat a path to Ferryway Green. The nines representing these two cities in the league are bitter rivals and their respective supporters wouldn't think of missing a clash between the pair.

Dilboy won last night, 4 to 2, by staging a ninth inning rally, which netted two runs, and the "Vets" are confident that they can repeat the performance in the enemy's lair.

Malden, though, feels that it is the better team and should have won last night and vows that when the ninth inning rolls around this evening it will be so far in the lead that it will be well nigh impossible for the visitors to catch up.

YOUNG FITZSIMMONS MAY BOX TUNNEY

New York, July 30. (A.P.).—Reports are current here that Young Bob Fitzsimmons, son of the former champion, and himself holder of a string of twelve knockouts, will be the next opponent of the American light heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, in a bout to be fought in San Francisco in September.

MORE ABOUT CANNING AND PRESERVING

ALTHOUGH this is no Questions and Answers Day, I am going to answer some questions, or rather give some canning and preserving recipes that have been especially requested.

The first request was from one of our members from Worcester, and it is gratifying to know that she gets the morning talks very clearly each day. This recipe is for—

RECIPE NO. 1446

CURRANT CONSERVE.

Squeeze the juice from 3 oranges and chop up the pulp after removing the white membrane. Measure 5 pounds of currants that have been stemmed and wash them thoroughly. Mix the orange juice and pulp and currants with 5 pounds of sugar and place in a smooth kettle. Bring to a boil and cook for ½ hour, being very careful that the mixture does not scorch. Fill the sterilized jelly glasses with the conserve and set away to cool. When hard cover with paraffin.

There is another currant conserve that is quite a bit thicker but equally delicious made in this way.

RECIPE NO. 1447

CURRANT CONSERVE NO. 2

Strip off the yellow rind of 6 oranges, being careful not to leave any of the white skin (this should be thrown away). Chop the yellow rind into small bits or run it through the coarse knife of your food chopper. Divide the peeled oranges into quarters and then cut them in pieces. Chop 2 pounds of raisins fine and put them in a kettle with the orange skin and pulp, 5½ pints of currant juice and 5½ pounds of sugar. (You should have 1 pound of sugar to each pint of juice.) Boil all ingredients together for 40 minutes then place in jelly cups.

There are splendid bargains in peaches in the market just now and I hope that many of you will want to try this:

RECIPE NO. 1448

PEACH AND PINEAPPLE JAM.

Peel peaches and cut the pulp into small pieces. Remove the peeling and the eyes from the pineapples and then shred it into fine pieces or grate it coarsely. You will need at least as much peach pulp as you have pineapple.

Add the juice of 1 lemon to each pint of fruit, and if you are especially fond of lemon flavoring, add the grated rind of the lemon too, but none of the white pulp. Allow ¾ of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit.

Put the fruit and the sugar into a saucepan in alternate layers. Heat gradually to the boiling point and let simmer 4 or 5 hours or until smooth and thick. Be sure not to cook this jam too long as the juice will thin more as it cools.

A North Shore member from Beverly asked me at the outing for a recipe for sweet pickled peaches, so I hope that she will it here today:

RECIPE NO. 1449

SWEET PICKLED PEACHES.

Remove the skins from 7 pounds of peaches, either by peeling them or dipping them in boiling water and slipping the skins off.

Make a syrup of 5 pounds of sugar, 1 pint of vinegar and 1 cup of water. Add 2 3 of a cup of stick cinnamon and 1 3 of a cup of small cloves. Then add a few of the peaches with 1 or 2 cloves pressed into each. Let cook a moment, turning the peaches if necessary so as to soften them on all sides, then arrange the peaches in fruit jars and cook a few more in the syrup. When they are all cooked, boil the syrup down and then fill the jars to overflowing. Seal them as you would any canned fruit.

I think that about 60 per cent. of the reports of canning failures are in connection with sweet corn. I have had some tragic experiences myself, before I came into possession of the following recipe for putting up sweet corn:

Don't hesitate to send in your requests for special canning recipes. It is always a pleasure to help you and you will receive a prompt reply, either by radio or in this column.

BATSMEN AID SENATORS' VET TWIRLERS

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Washington's batsmen have come to the aid of their veteran pitchers. With a four-run rally in the eighth the champions yesterday outscored Chicago, thereby keeping pace with the leading Athletics of the American League.

First Zachary, then Marberry, then Johnson went to the mound for the Senators during the battle, and Johnson was effective, allowing a lone hit in two innings and gaining credit for the 8 to 6 victory while Urban Faber, who relieved Blankenship, suffered the defeat.

Philadelphia bats were busy and kept Ty Cobb and the other Tiger outfielders on the run after sixteen safe blows which counted the ten tallies. The Tigers could muster only two scores, although they sent forth thirteen singles. Slim Harris kept the same number of base runners away from home.

BOXING SHOW FRIDAY NIGHT AT QUINCY

Quincy boxing fans will turn out in large numbers next Friday night when the Fore River Club stages its annual amateur boxing tournament at the Fore River field, Quincy. Four open and one novice class will complete the card.

YOUNG STRIBLING IS VICTOR OVER PERKINS

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 29.—William L. "Young" Stribling, Atlanta school boy, light heavyweight, easily outpointed Harvey Perkins, Casper, Wyo., in ten rounds here last night.

JACK 'RESTING' TILL FALL OF NEXT YEAR

Los Angeles, July 30 (A.P.).—A former Bostonian, who said he was speaking for Jack Dempsey, announces that the real estate holdings of the champion and his manager have been divided and an agreement reached insuring Jack Kearns his split of the profits of any Dempsey bout prior to September, 1926. The announcement followed conferences between Dempsey and Kearns.

Whether there will be any Dempsey bout prior to September of next year, however, remains to be seen, the ex-Bostonian said, explaining that nothing has been done about the proposed bout at Michigan City, Ind., next September.

"Dempsey has not signed to fight Greb at Michigan City and does not intend to," added the champion's spokesman. "No articles were sent to him to sign; nothing definite was done about the proposed Greb match, and, as a result, Dempsey has decided that if he fights any one at all in September it will not be Greb.

"He will continue light training, however, in case some kind of a bout is arranged for him soon; but if action is delayed he will turn his attention to other affairs.

"It was agreed at the conferences that if Dempsey fights before the expiration of his contract with Kearns in September, 1926, Kearns will get a 35 per cent split.

"There is only one definite bout on Dempsey's program and that is the bout in which he has agreed to meet Harry Wills in the Fall of 1926."

NEW CADILLAC, LOWER PRICE, IS ANNOUNCED

At a cost of $2,500,000 the Cadillac Motor Car Company has designed and placed in production a new car, announced and now on display by Cadillac distributors and dealers.

The new car, which continues the V-type, 90-degree, eight-cylinder engine, is entirely redesigned as to engine, chassis and body and incorporates notable improvements, according to the company's announcement. Prices on the various body models have been reduced by amounts ranging from $190 to $930.

Conjecture as to the next step by the Cadillac company has been rife since its announcement two years ago of the fundamental perfection of the V-type, 90-degree, eight-cylinder principle of engine design. The company's engineers at that time were beginning their investigations for production of a new car. The $2,500,000 expenditure has been invested in new dies, jigs, tools and fixtures for manufacture of parts which almost without exception have been redesigned.

Six standard and seven custom-built bodies are included in the new line. The three open cars—roadsters, touring and phaeton—have custom-built bodies.

The new Cadillacs are low, fleet and graceful. Their lines are new and sweeping, somewhat European in effect, with longer bonnet, refinement of radiator design, new fenders with foreign touch, and new and distinctive lamps both headlamps and rear signals. The bodies are finished in various colors—blues, greens, grays, browns and creams—setting off the skillful blending of curves and contours.

Both standard and custom-built bodies are by Fisher, designed and produced by that organization, working in close co-operation with Cadillac engineers.

MAHONY WON'T ACT AS DANCE CENSOR

Building Commissioner John H. Mahony will not become a censor of dancing, the "Charleston" or others, even if the shebas and sheiks vibrate the city's architecture right into the ash heap. Alarmed by what he regarded as a menace to structural security of local dance halls, City Censor John M. Casey asked Mayor Curley and Commissioner Mahony to place the official taboo on the Charleston, with its rhythmic vibrations, which he feared might be communicated to the buildings. Commissioner Mahony replied he was too busy attending to structures already cracking to watch the effect of twinkling feet of jazz devotees on steel and stone.

HELPED THROUGH CHANGE OF LIFE

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during this Critical Time

Baltimore, Md.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help me through the Change of Life and for a broken-down system. I had been complaining a long time and dragging along had tried other medicines which did not help me much. I read in the newspapers of the Vegetable Compound and after taking a bottle I felt better. I did not stop with one bottle, but took it through the whole critical time and am now practically a well woman. I have two daughters whose health was very bad before they married and I was worried about them. I got the Vegetable Compound for them and it helped them, and after they married it also helped them in bearing their babies. This is a great and good medicine for all complaints of women, and I recommend it to all."—Mrs. L. GINGRICH, 1375 N. Gilmor St., Baltimore, Maryland

The Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for women of middle age. Let it relieve you of nervousness, that feeling of strain and those annoying hot flashes so common at this time.

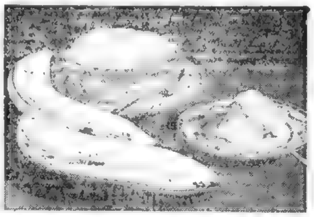
ABOUT A WILD WEST SHOW

O[illegible]



A ripe, delicious lure for shy appetite

THE tropic deliciousness of a ripe banana is Nature's lure—to make shy appetites want more of this nutritious, wholesome fruit. We Americans are too fast for Nature. Sometimes we eat bananas before they are ready. Buy bananas by the dozen, and let them ripen at home. Wait until all green is gone, and the golden skin is flecked with brown. Then a banana is fully ripe, full of nutriment, and easier to digest than meat and eggs, with a mellow ripe sweetness that is just delicious

BANANA CUSTARD

Slice 3 ripe bananas. Beat 2 whole eggs and 2 yolks with [illegible] cup cake crumbs and 1 cup milk, 2 minutes. Add 2 teaspoons lemon rind and stir in bananas. Pour into greased baking dish, set in pan of warm water and bake in moderate oven (300°F.) [illegible] until pudding has set. Cover top with meringue made by beating 2 egg whites and ½ cup sugar. Bake 10 minutes longer or until meringue is brown.

NO MEAL can be better than its butter

TO-NIGHT, try Fairmont's Better Butter at dinner and see what a wonderful difference it makes. Serve everybody with a generous pat and put a rich golden block in the green peas and another in the mashed potatoes. Oh! how extra, extra good these things will taste.

Will you have steak? Broil it to a tender, juicy turn and spread it with Fairmont's Better Butter. Let its yellow goodness trickle over and run down into the gravy. Then sprinkle it with salt and pepper and bring it in piping hot. What ravishing taste-teasing odors scent the air! You can hardly wait. If you are having hot biscuit, too, that makes it all the tastier. Put a creamy piece of Fairmont's in the middle of each and pile up the plate—for appetites are sure to stir mightily.

Perhaps you never have thought of butter just this way, but, next to salt, butter is the most important thing good cooks use for flavor. For pure nourishment that goes to make rich, red blood, nothing equals it. Ordinary butter makes insipid and lack-lustre meals. Even a meager amount of good butter leaves good food just short of perfection.

For health, for purity, for freshness, for the golden goodness it gives to everything—use plenty of

The Specialist

DRAWN BY POPINI

IN the Summer, or the Fall or any old time when the moon is sending her silvery beams to transform this old earth, and the stars are twinkling and the world seems made for lovers—if then your heart doesn't skip a beat when you are in the presence of some fair charmer, then you are in. Oh, such a bad way! Take my advice and consult a "specialist" immediately, but do it at once, before it is too late to partake of the glory of youth and spirit.

And don't despair. Be sure, though, that you consult the right one. I'd suggest that you go to the one who most fills your thoughts. She'll diagnose your case and prescribe a course of treatment, and be sure you fill it to the letter. You'll recover, for no case is really hopeless, particularly where Love guides the "specialist" in her prescription.

ROMANTIC HUSBAND

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

By Anne Lisle

IT was not clear whether he had [illegible] and [illegible] gone down with the ship [illegible] whether he had spitefully "planted" the news of the [illegible] with all on board, in the hope of making Mabel a bigamist.

But Mabel's search had revealed Bonnie as far nobler in death than in life. Her widowhood was proved and established. Her apprenticeship to sorrow was long over and she and Park had known a glorious honeymoon year.

Mabel took me in her arms, and as she held me close she said aloud:

"Park, darling, I know that precious old housekeeper you were telling me about is aching to hug you. [illegible] and [illegible] her [illegible]"

And [illegible] take [illegible] rest of [illegible] out to see the gardens or the swans or the peacocks or something," laughed Ralph.

So I found myself alone with Mabel.

"Ralph told us. It's horrible. But horror doesn't matter when through it you win your freedom," Mabel said, drawing me down to the couch at her side and laying her cheek tenderly against mine.

I leaped to my feet.

"Then you—you who knew Jim so well—you who fought for Jim in a terrible business [illegible] years ago—you don't believe in him?" I [illegible] accusingly.

"[illegible] dear, [illegible] so plain," said Mabel gently. "Jim always was getting himself entangled with women. This time the woman was a clever adventuress. She brought pressure to bear [illegible] desperate man [illegible] weak [illegible] he had weakened his own power of withstanding temptation [illegible] Jim [illegible] of—self-indulgence. [illegible]"

In this moment I felt that there was no one who would trust Jim against the horrible weight of circumstances in which he seemed enmeshed. If Mabel, who had worked side by side with him; if Jeanie, his sister, doubted, who would have faith in Jim?

DAILY SHORT STORY

Ann's Answer

By Richard G. Swaringen

RALPH ALLEN smiled with mild exultation as he glanced at the watch beside his typewriter, then drew out the last page of the brief he had just finished. It was only a few minutes to eight. He would have to hurry to fill his engagement with Ann Reid.

Quickly he arranged the sheets of the first and carbon copies in order, locked the carbon copy in a drawer and put the other in his pocket for a final inspection later. This document was the result of two weeks' work, and embraced the evidence in his first case of importance as county prosecuting attorney.

It would, he believed, prove conclusively that there had been no mistake in his appointment, even if he were the youngest member of the local bar.

Hoped for Triumph

His hoped for triumph would be all the more striking by reason of the fact that his investigations had been conducted secretly.

Ralph rose, tall and dark and handsome, and got into his overcoat. Gradually the somewhat hard look of anticipatory triumph faded out of his eyes, leaving them tender, even anxious. He was thinking of Ann and Ann was as yet far from being a certain quantity.

The switching off of his light left the whole courthouse dark and gloomy. The chill of Winter struck him as he emerged into the hall, which was lighted only by the street lamps shining through the open front entry. Ralph walked fast, absorbed in thoughts of Ann to the point of forgetting that he had not taken time to eat supper.

Such thoughts drifted pleasantly through his mind until he stood upon the [illegible] knocking. Ann [illegible] [illegible] too, was tall and [illegible] hair [illegible] brown that gleamed [illegible] copper under the electric light. Her mouth was almost too wide, the lips strikingly red. Sometimes there was a greenish tinge in the blue of her eyes.

She led the way into the library, a large room, hardly sufficiently filled with comfortable chairs and a table in addition to books along the walls. She waited until he was seated [illegible] to the fire when [illegible] fetched a plate from the table and flicked off its snowy covering napkin.

Surprised and Pleased

Ralph looked from the thick [illegible] of cake upon the plate to her [illegible] pleased by her thoughtfulness [illegible] was surprised at his own sudden hunger.

"Ann, how did you know?"

"Know what?" Ann's voice was a [illegible] contralto, almost as deep and strong as a man's.

"That I'm hungry—haven't had any supper."

"Oh!" Ann's face was lovelier than ever in its quick concern. "I'll get you something else. There's cold roast in the pantry, and—"

"No, Ann, wait!" Ralph was on his feet again abruptly, trembling a little. "Ann, I love you," he blurted. "I want you!"

As suddenly he was frightened, chilled. He had not meant to tell her abruptly like that, but her solicitude for his comfort had set his tongue a-wagging. In her face was a still inquiry that he did not like nor understand, her greenish blue eyes were searching his face as she put the plate back on the table. Yet, having begun, he was impelled to go on:

"Ann, you'll be my wife, won't you?"

Ann's eyes searched his face. "That's the second proposal I've received today!" she murmured half to herself.

"Ah!" Ralph drew back. "I didn't know—"

"Ernest Baldwin asked me the same thing." Ann still might have been talking to herself, so [illegible] thoughtful was her tone. She seemed, indeed, to be lost in thought, gave no sign of any wakening emotion.

Foolish Thing To Do

"Ernest Baldwin?" Ralph [illegible]ed the name so sharply that the girl was startled; yet he seemed hardly aware of her answering nod. His healthy color was fading slowly and there was a sick look in his eyes. For as much as a minute he stared at her drearily.

Then with a sudden movement he drew from his inner coat pocket the folded sheets of paper he had typed only a little while before [illegible] them in the flames.

"Ralph!" she called, deliberately as always; yet there was a new quality of tone that drew him back. "Ralph, what was that paper?"

Ralph shook his head, trying to smile carelessly. "Just some old papers that I don't need any—"

"Tell me!" she urged gently, her eyes gazing straight into his; and Ralph perceived that only the truth would suffice.

"Only a bill of indictment I was going to present before the grand jury. Nothing of any consequence—"

"Please!"

For Bootlegging

"Well, it was against George Baldwin, Ernest's father." Ralph did not look at her now. "For bootlegging—though on that scale it's more respectfully called importing. He's made a fortune at it. The astonishing thing is that so few people seem to know."

"Why did you burn the paper?"

"Well, since you're going to marry Ernest, I didn't want to bring a thing like that against your future father-in-law. I [illegible] destroy the carbon copy."

"Isn't that betraying your oath of office?"

"Not—er—not exactly." Ralph tried to speak carelessly. "You see, I'm going to resign."

He was afraid to look at Ann, but he plainly heard her sigh.

"So you'd give up your job for me too!" she murmured. "You love me that much?"

"Don't worry about me. I——"

Knew Already

"And I was just wondering whether I should tell you that Ernest is as deeply involved as his father. He boasted it to me!" Ralph looked at her now, his attention caught by [illegible] tone of passionate [illegible] "He boasted of the money he makes by breaking the law!"

"So—so you know already——"

Ann nodded. He was amazed to see that her face was transformed, radiant. "And I know now," she said, "what you mean when you speak of love!"

It was she who drew his head down until their lips could meet.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a girl of twenty and have never gone out with a young [illegible] That is, a young man never asked me personally to go out with him. Lots of them ask my girl friend to go out and tell her to bring some girl. If she brings me it's the last time we ever see the young man, or else she sees him again and he asks her to bring another girl besides me.

I don't understand it. I have [illegible] of girl friends [illegible] But when the young men come along it's different. I'm always the one that's left out. Lots of young men I've known since school days say I'm a nice girl and leave it at that. It isn't that I'm not as nice looking as the rest, for I know myself that I could pass in the crowd.

HELEN.

ASK your girl friend, Helen, whether she knows of any little peculiarity or mannerism of yours that makes you unpopular with young men. As she herself is a popular girl, she may be able to point out just the one little thing you lack.

Possibly you're shy and self-conscious with men yet perfectly natural with girls. In that case, your [illegible] makes [illegible] men feel stiff [illegible] They [illegible] instead a girl who has an easy, offhand manner. Just treat them as you do your girl friends and think of them also in the same frank, friendly way.

Three Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WE have all heard of the marriage of Venice to the Adriatic. This ceremony was performed annually in the days of the doges of Venice. The Pontiff would present the Doge with a ring from his own finger and with this ring he would wed the Adriatic.

The ceremony took place on Ascension Day. A state gondola, reserved for this purpose, manned by forty rowers and elaborately decorated, carried the Doge towards the Isle of Lido. When he arrived, he poured holy water into the sea and then, taking the ring from his finger, he dropped it into the Adriatic, saying, "We espouse thee, O Sea, in token of our just and perpetual dominion."

A similar ceremony is performed every three years in Cork Harbor, Ireland. In this case it is a clause in the city's charter that calls for the performance. The Mayor of Cork is also Admiral of the Port, and he must assert his jurisdiction over the sea by throwing a dart into it.

The ceremony is much the same in Ireland as in Venice. Instead of the ring, the Mayor uses a mahogany dart tipped with bronze. Instead of a gondola, the party boards a steam vessel. The members of the town council, the officers and band of the Cork civic artillery, several ladies and the Mayor constitute the party.

The steamer makes its way out to sea toward an imaginary line between Poor Head and Cork Head. This is the maritime boundary of the borough. When they reach this spot, the Mayor dons his official robes, and, accompanied by the town dignitaries, makes his way to the prow of the vessel.

It is from this point that the famous dart is thrown, proclaiming that the Mayor is the Lord High Admiral of the Port.

A festive and elaborate dinner follows the ceremony in the evening. The entire thing is one of the most picturesque customs of a picturesque land. Perhaps the brilliant robes and the graceful gondolas make the scene in Venice more beautiful. But the romance of the idea is quite as love in Cork Harbor, and surely the Mayor's brave robes must lend a touch of color to the scene.

There is something ages old in this idea of a marriage of the land and the sea. It has appeared all through the centuries and we still find it attractive.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

In the South—Montana has interesting, wild mountains. But somehow, in Arizona you feel that you are at the top of the world, far above and away from the softnesses of an effete civilization.

It was at Prescott, well called "Jewel of the Mountains," that the first cowboy contest in America was held, in 1888, and we happened to be crossing the mountains as cowboys were here and there wending their paths home from a four-day cowboy frontier demonstration and contest at Prescott, "the Cowboy Capital of the World." Here you find the West of pioneer traditions—except at semi-deserted mining camps, the many saloons and pool rooms and ramshackle rooming houses are gaunt and empty.

* * *

You probably never heard of Yavapai County—pronounce the last part like "pie." Yet it is a most amazing place, this wonderland, of which Prescott is the capital. For example:

Its cliff and cave dwellings and hieroglyphics are held by experts to be as old as the Pyramids of Egypt.

It is larger in area than the State of Jersey.

It contains what are described as perhaps the largest stands of virgin pine timber left in America today.

The first army post, Fort Whipple, built of rough logs for protection from Indian renegades, is located at Prescott—although today it is the home of one of the largest government hospitals in the country for ex-service men.

* * *

From Yavapai County has come, by actual record, more than $400,000,000 from the mines since 1880. Here are located the United Verde, the United Verde Extension and other rich mines. United Verde Extension alone has showered more than $16,000,000 upon its lucky stockholders, many who paid ten cents a share having had sense enough—or luck enough—to hold on and become wealthy. United Verde is still paying some $400,000 a month in wages—and selling its products—(copper, silver, gold) for upwards of $15,000,000 a year.

* * *

Yavapai County has 150,000 cattle. It has some 140,000 acres of fertile land awaiting the turning on of the ample supply of available water. Already over fifty varieties of apples are raised in this extraordinary county.

Prescott's banks had the coveted distinction of never refusing to pay out cash during the 1907 panic when banks in New York, Chicago and all our other proud cities stopped such payments.

Disabled veterans are given an inspiring opportunity to sustain themselves and their self-respect by a copper, hand-craft shop, under capable instruction—an excellent idea.

* * *

Much of its goaheadness Prescott owes to its Chamber of Commerce and its ubiquitous secretary, Grace Sparkes; to its Kiwanis Club under the presidency of Paul Lodge; to its progressive newspapers, and to Dan J. Seaman, a young citizen who gives much of his time to public spirited enterprises.

* * *

Verily, America contains much and many that most of us never even hear of.

DILLON, READ IN $25,000,000 FINANCING

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Twenty-five million dollars financing by Seaboard Air Line is expected to be announced Friday. I understand the financing will be done through medium of the Seaboard All Florida Railway, the vehicle created by Seaboard for development of its Florida business, and banking syndicate will be headed by Dillon, Read & Co. New loan is to provide for calling at 104 and interest $7,000,000 Florida Western & Northern Railway first mortgage 7s.

William C. Durant, formerly of Boston, is probably the centre of more rumors in the stock market than any other one man. How many millions he has made in the street is the subject of periodical conjecture.

* * *

One of the numerous issues in which he has been reported to be largely interested is Independent Oil and Gas. For some time past this has been largely acquired in Boston and rumors have been busily circulated that Mr. Durant had formed a new pool in it. The break this week from a high of 36 to a low of 30¾ was the source of much comment and anxiety on the part of speculators who had bought in anticipation of a further rise. There was a tendency to attribute the decline to the reported "collapse" of merger negotiations with another oil company, but as reports that deal of this character were never officially confirmed many in the Street had never taken the consolidation rumors seriously.

* * *

Fisher Body shares held the centre of attention when it soared 5¾ points. Associated with the spectacular jump in Fisher Body, which is controlled by General Motors, were reports that directors are planning the declaration of an extra dividend in September, with a possible later exchange of Fisher Body for General Motors on a share-for-share basis. It was pointed out that a factor which would facilitate the acquisition of all the minority Fisher Body shares by General Motors is that Mr. Durant has completed the sale in the open market of his Fisher Body holdings, against which he sold participating units to the public. According to reports, the trust under which the units were issued has been terminated.

Discussing a former Chelsea man, the Boston News Bureau's Wall Street correspondent says: "As directing head of National City Bank, with its $910,000,000 deposits, Charles E. Mitchell is well qualified to talk on business and credit conditions. His remarks that despite some pessimism the volume of business has been greater than the first six months of any other year, and there is every promise for better business than this country has seen since 1920, bear out his prediction at close of 1924. At end of 1924 Mr. Mitchell viewed 1925 with favor. He has been president of the City Bank just four years, during which he has seen his deposits grow some $300,000,000. Speaking of credit, Mr. Mitchell says that while there is more bank credit in use than ever before, bank resources are greater than ever before, and there is not even the beginning of a strain on credit resources. Mr. Mitchell expects money rates to strengthen as demands increase, and emphasizes that prosperous times and low money rates do not go hand in hand. The average Wall Street trader often forgets higher money rates indicate better business conditions."

AUTOMOTIVE SALES ARE LEADING THOSE OF 1924

Automotive Industries this week will say: Sales in nearly all automotive lines are showing the normal ratio of decline from the brisk business during the height of the season, but cars, trucks, tires and accessories are all being disposed of at a higher rate than at this time a year ago, a condition eminently satisfactory to the industry.

*Operating profits of California Co. of $620,392 not included, but applied in reduction of California deficit and consequently an addition to parent company equity, but not available for interest.

Chairman E. G. Wilmer says in part:

Production and sales for the six months ended June 30, 1925, were considerably higher than those of any like period in the history of Goodyear.

Cash in banks and on hand amounting to $11,450,889. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 8 to 1.

Due to restriction of output, the current cost of crude rubber is very much in excess of the cost of production. Board of directors has therefore deemed it advisable to appropriate out of last six months' earnings a "Special Raw Material Reserve" of $3,000,000 to partially provide against a possible and material decline in crude rubber values. This action is taken notwithstanding our present inventories and commitments insure us our requirements of rubber for the balance of the year at prices considerably under today's market prices.

BRITISH LACK MONEY, SO AMERICA IS GIVEN LOANS

New York, July 30.—Private advices received here from London indicate that the insufficiency of excess British funds, due to bad trade and too heavy consumptive expenditure, is the explanation of the sale of several foreign loans, particularly the Australian issue, in the American market.

Persistence in the policy of raising loans in excess of real lending capacity, said one dispatch, "would have demoralized the gilt-edged market, forced up interest rates, depressing security prices and perhaps compelled a raising of the Bank of England rates."

SANTA FE DINER AND LOUNGE

The Santa Fe Railway announces a successful trial trip on the California Limited, from Chicago to Los Angeles and back, of its latest improved all-steel dinning car and club-lounge car, both built from original designs by Byron S. Harvey of the Fred Harvey System, Chicago, and embodying radical innovations.

The architectural and decorative treatment is the work of David Adler, a prominent Chicago architect. The trial trip indicates that more passengers can be comfortably served at meals and in less time than under the usual methods, without any standing in aisles waiting for a seat.

Letters patent have been taken out on the diner, which is actually a restaurant on wheels, with devices for much quicker service. The last dining car patent was granted in 1865 to the late George M. Pullman.

GIVES MORE SPACE.

Except for larger cars and better equipment, the diner ordinarily in use on American railways is about what it was fifty years ago. Aisle congestion, crowding in pantry and kitchen and unavoidable delays in serving patrons have baffled the cleverest managers. Only a radical rearrangement of the interior space offered any hope for permanent improvement. Briefly, this is what the newest Santa Fe-Fred Harvey car, in connection with the club-lounge car, has done. It bids fair to revolutionize that branch of railroading and improve the already high standard of railway meals on wheels.

These two cars are operated together and located at the forward end of the train. The new diner has only one public entrance, through the reception room in the club-lounge car, which, being next to and behind the dining car, is furnished with easy chairs, available for use in case of any delay in securing satisfactory seats at tables.

Besides the customary barber shop, bath and lounge, the club-lounge car has a small soda fountain, likewise facilities for sale of candy, cigars and magazines. Sleeping quarters and private bath for the crew of the diner are in this car.

DINER SEATS 42.

The dining car seats forty-two persons instead of the customary thirty or thirty-six. The kitchen and pantry go all the way across, from side to side. An employe in the checking station acts both as checker and cashier, enabling the steward to give his entire attention to guests.

The waiters receive their silver, glassware, salads, etc., direct from the pantryman, instead of doing that work themselves. The entire crew of waiters can occupy the pantry at one time, thus facilitating service. Kitchen and pantry are well ventilated, all excessive heat thereby being eliminated. Automatic dishwashing, sterilizing and egg-rolling apparatus are notable features.

The Santa Fe plans to build more dining and club-lounge cars of this new type, gradually replacing present models. The station dining room service for certain trains will not be changed.

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon Street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least over one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for building Section One, Dorchester Rapid Transit. This section is located on and near the Boston Division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, between Dorchester Avenue and Harrison Square, and is about one and three-quarter miles in length. Can't Think for Themselves

No Wonder, They Can't Even DRESS Themselves

Each season their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary, give a certain number of garden parties at Buckingham Palace. That's where Woodrow Wilson and his wife slept when they were over there lending money and promising many things to Europe.

At the first royal garden party the King wore a high hat of gray felt and a gray morning suit. The Queen, who always dresses very quietly, with loose skirts down to the soles of her shoes, wore a dress and a hat of mauve.

For the next three days the dressmakers, hatmakers and tailors of London were working their heads off. And last Friday, when the King and Queen gave their SECOND garden party, they greeted a crowd of men with gray high hats and gray suits, and women with mauve dresses and mauve hats.

If the King and Queen were pleased by the "imitation which is the sincerest flattery," they were easily pleased.

You often wonder that people cannot THINK for themselves, but you don't wonder so much when you see that they cannot even DRESS for themselves.

They must follow and imitate somebody else.

And the funniest part of it is not in England. After this news is printed you will have tailors, hatmakers and dressmakers in the United States turning out mauve costumes for women and gray costumes for men.

However, while men have made fools of themselves in imitating, they have also LEARNED by imitating. Children learn much by imitation, and to imitation of the outstretched wings of a soaring bird we owe our flying machines.

It Shocks, Amazes, Annoys

But It Need Not

The scientific world, especially in Great Britain, is amazed and gets a terrible shock upon discovering the humble origin of the two men that have recently done extraordinary work in cancer research.

The man who contributed fine work with a microscope kept a hock shop. And shopkeepers are not much "socially" in England, you know. And Dr. W. E. Gye, believed to have isolated the germ of cancer, actually worked as a railroad porter.

The only surprising thing about it is that the scientific world should be surprised and the snobbish world annoyed.

Huxley once sent a microscope and encouragement to a humble day laborer, and the man turned out to be a most valuable scientific worker.

Nancy Hanks, Lincoln's mother, probably couldn't read, but she was able to do good work for the world.

Pasteur, giant in science, and one of the world's most useful servants, was a man of humble origin, his father a tanner. He himself never passed examinations as a doctor. But he taught all the doctors of the world the most important things that they know.

A Big Question

With 1,000 Answers

"What is religion?" is the subject of a sermon by a brilliant clergyman. How would you answer the question?

Bolshevism says "religion is the opiate of the people," meaning that it puts them to sleep and makes it easy to manage them.

Science says that religion is the effort of human beings to find a ready-made, satisfying answer to questions that cannot be answered otherwise.

"Consolation for the poor in spirit," is one answer.

The effort of man to UNDERSTAND HIMSELF by seeking to understand his Creator is another.

Whatever the real answer may be, this is sure:

RELIGION IS A NECESSITY. And sincerity in religion as in other things makes men better.

Use Copper

Rust Costs Billions

Copper produced from American ores in the United States and Alaska last year amounted to 634,249,192 pounds, 280,000 pounds more than the previous year.

If builders understood the value of copper and realized how many hundreds of millions UNNECESSARY RUST costs the United States every year, the copper output would double —prices also.

It is announced—and if it is true it means gigantic savings—that a small percentage of copper mixed with iron will prevent rust. The needless loss caused by rust would soon equal the national debt.

They May

But Should NOT

Detroit decides that women may smoke in street cars. Women should be allowed to smoke wherever men smoke if they want to. But women should not want to smoke on street cars.

For more than 100,000 years women have been setting a good example on this earth. There is no good reason why they should stop the good example now.

Russia Can

We Can't

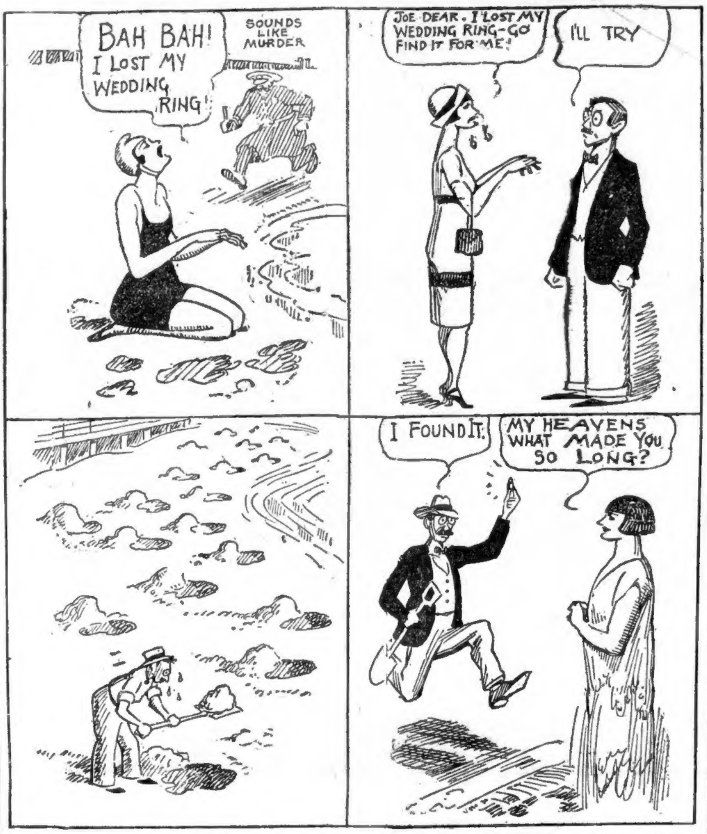
Russia will spend eighty million dollars to develop electrical power. Over there the GOVERNMENT will do it. It isn't necessary apparently, in Russia, for private individuals to prove that government is incompetent. They can prove that easily in the United States.

Where do you suppose the Russians get the $80,000,000?

On the Sands

"She Lost Her Wedding Ring"
In Four Scenes

By T. E. Powers



BAH BAH! I LOST MY WEDDING RING!
SOUNDS LIKE MURDER
JOE DEAR. I LOST MY WEDDING RING—GO FIND IT FOR ME!
I'LL TRY
I FOUND IT.
MY HEAVENS WHAT MADE YOU SO LONG?

Scene 1—This opens, one beautiful morning, on the beach. A newly wedded wife is mourning the loss of her wedding ring.

Scene 2—She breaks the news to hubby. Hubby, the big Butter and Egg Man, scorns the loss and tells her he will buy her a bigger one. But, no, it's bad luck to lose a wedding ring. Go get the old one. It is in the sand near the ocean.

Scene 3—He takes his trusty sand shovel in hand and works for ten hours. He makes the beach look like a prairie dog village.

Scene 4—He finds the ring, and then the familiar words quoted above are his reward.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson.

I AM about to write very seriously on a most intimate subject. That subject is LADIES' UNDERWEAR.

No, you needn't begin to roll your eyes or snicker. It isn't going to be that kind of a story. It is going to be a talk for the women over thirty-five who are having a hard time adjusting themselves to the simplified and intensified life of the day, and it is going to be written with all the insight and sympathy I possess.

Do you remember, Mary, the underclothes you wore that Winter you were sixteen?

Layer upon layer of clothes piled on your small body—layer upon layer of wool and cotton and linen and starch and whalebone, shutting your skin away from the sunshine and fresh air?

And just this morning you watched your eighteen-year-old Gladys dress for work. It took her ten minutes. What did she do and wear? Out of bed into a shower—brushed her teeth—ran a comb through her bobbed hair—powdered her nose and reddened her lips—gave her nails a flick with the buffer—drew on a silk step-in—rolled two stockings below her pretty knees—slipped into her pumps—drew on a one-piece dress, and there she was—ready for the day, infinitely happier, healthier and better groomed than you were at eighteen with all your pile of dry goods! One step-in, one dress, stockings and shoes—nothing more?

And, somehow, you just can't seem to get used to it, can you? Try as you will, you can't simplify your own dressing.

You're wearing at this moment a shirt, a corset, a brassiere, a fancy corset cover, a frilled vest and a blouse over your diaphragm and lungs. AND YOU'RE WEARING JUST THAT MANY LAYERS OVER YOUR MIND, TOO, MARY.

We're weary of being starched, fluted and edged and frilled. We hate the drag and fuss and waste of time and energy which that old order entailed. We want ACTION. We want SPEED. We want FREEDOM. AND WE'VE JUNKED NINE-TENTHS OF OUR MENTAL UNDERWEAR TO GET THEM!

HOW MESSY!
HOW IMMODEST!
ELSIE ROBINSON

You're wearing too many underclothes, physically and mentally, Mary. That's why you feel stupid and clumsy and tired and peevish. That's why you feel out of joint with the universe. Snap out of them, sister! Give your shape and your soul a chance.

Take care of the physical end of things first. Junk that heavy corset and brassiere and get yourself into one of those new corselets. Learn the joy of bending again—bending with your waist and BENDING WITH YOUR MIND.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

HERE'S hail to the field and the forest, here's hail to the valley and stream, to the wide-stretching prairies and meadows with the gold of the sunlight a-gleam! What joy to be far from the cities, drinking deep of the flower-sweet air, as free as the bluebirds above me from the fetters of worry and care! What peace to go lazily drifting on the breast of the winding lagoon, adrift in the glow of the sunset, adrift till the rise of the moon! The world's for the toiler, men tell us, but who would work ever and aye? Toil is sweet, but the willow tree whispers it is sweeter to drift thus today. With the song of the meadow lark soaring, with the murmur of ripples that guide, how good to be lazily drifting where the roar of the cities has died!

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the lonesomest jobs in the world is that of a milkman. He has to go around the city at 4 o'clock in the morning when half the people are in bed and the other half aren't home yet.

THE only company he's got is his horse, and a lot of horses aren't sociable.

PAUL REVERE was different, he had plenty of people to talk to. He woke everybody up.

ONE milkman is so areful not to disturb his customers that he walks up and down their front steps in his bare feet.

EVEN the horse wears rubber heels.

THE slightest noise will awake anybody. A Brooklyn milkman had to give up his job because he had asthma.

HE was arrested three times for wheezing in a hospital zone.

NOT only that, but he had St. Vitus' dance. He shook all over, and when the people got their milk in the morning it was butter.

HE used to drop six or seven quarts of milk a day. He said he'd get the dairy to buy harder bottles if the city would make softer sidewalks.

THE one bad feature in a quart of milk is that it won't bounce.

ESPECIALLY when it's in the bottle.

THERE'D be no harm in dropping a bottle if the driver had presence of mind to take the milk out of it first.

BUT the sidewalk usually beats him to it.

ONE dairyman didn't want his customers to be awakened by the crashing of glass so he always fired a revolver every time he dropped a quart of milk.

A LOT of people seem to think it's the milk that makes all the noise.

NOTHING could be quieter than a pint of cream, providing it hasn't got its kimono on.

WE all feel sorry for a dairy wagon driver. A milkman is a hero to everybody except his horse.

IF YOU ARE WELL OFF, WHY ENVY A MILLIONAIRE?

"All I have in the world is my home and a few hundred dollars and a family of which I feel proud, but I'll bet I'm as happy as any capitalist in the world," writes a friend.

Here is a man with the right philosophy of life.

If he has all this and enough to take care of simple wants to the end of his days, why should he not be a happy man?

Wealth entails worry incidental to the protection and preserving of it.

If you have sufficient income for your needs, why envy the millionaire?

If you are getting a lot out of life with little worry, you are doing more than are the men with unlimited resources.

ABILITY TO KEEP ON AFTER DRAMA ENDS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

YOUR chances of great success in life depend ultimately on how you are able to answer this question:

Can you keep on working just as hard after the drama has ended?

What I mean is this:

A sustained appreciation of a dramatic situation is impossible.

The most dramatic event becomes matter-of-fact if held long enough.

Suppose right now while you are in the middle of reading this editorial someone touches you on the shoulder and notifies you of your election to the presidency of the company for which you work.

Instantly you appreciate the dramatic situation and dramatize yourself. You see the romance of achievement, the glamor of success.

You picture the headlines in the local papers "From Clerk to President—Dramatic Rise of Local Man," etc. You visualize yourself in a heroic role.

And all this would be true enough.

But after the flowers and the speeches you would settle down to work.

As the days and weeks and months slipped by, the drama would fade and the position be taken for granted.

You might then find that while you might think of the drama of it, you would have to think of the work and all its details.

Then the routine, the drudgery, the constant attention demanded by the job would absorb all your thought.

It is easy to work hard under the exhilaration of seeing yourself in a great dramatic role. But when the dramatic import of the situation fades out and it becomes matter-of-fact, the drudgery of the work remains.

Then comes the test of a man's real character, the proof of whether he really desires to be great or only to seem great.

A famous war correspondent once said that the quality about great men that always impressed him was the frequency with which they engaged in world-influencing actions without seeming to sense the superlatively dramatic roles they were playing.

They were giving their whole attention to the job. They kept on after the drama had faded. This is one of the reasons for their greatness.

Everyone has his troubles—even Presidents of the United States and Holders of Municipal Bonds—and these troubles always make the most noise in the band concert of life.

The place you want to attain has its troubles, too.

That's one good reason for getting there—to see if you are man enough to overcome them.

But remember that when the drama fades the troubles will remain and your success will depend on your ability to keep on after the drama ends.

POCKET COMPASS AND HOW TO USE IT

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Kindly explain the may to use a compass so that the novice can find his way around in the country with it.—D. C.

INDEED it does require some thinking and some practice to enable an inexperienced person to steer himself about the country with the aid only of a compass.

It is by no means so simple as it seems to the reader of Cooper's "Pathfinder," when he is told how "Cap," the old seaman, traversing the endless forest of central New York in pre-Revolutionary days and distrusting the knowledge of his Indian guide, deliberately "set" the direction of a distant campfire smoke with his pocket-compass before he would stir a step in that wilderness of trees where you couldn't see a hundred feet straight in any direction.

But the wayfarer by land need not necessarily learn to "box the compass" like the sailor, nor utilize all the various "points" of the mariner's compass.

Needs Few Points

He hardly needs more points than those indicated on our skeleton picture, viz.: North, south, east, west, northeast, northwest, southeast, southwest, with perhaps the medial directions between, making in all sixteen.

The compass cannot give precise geographical directions, because not only does the needle not point truly toward the North Pole of the earth, but the direction in which it does point is somewhat different in different parts of the world.

Only along a sinuous line running through the middle of the United States does the needle indicate true north. But for ordinary purposes of pathfinding this variation of the compass may be disregarded.

Suppose you are lost in the woods and do not know in what direction to find your way out. Then the compass will enable you to follow any straight line that you may choose.

Assume that you decide to go East. Hold your compass level, or better, set it down on a level support, so that the needle can come to rest. In all compasses the north-pointing end of the needle is colored blue or red, or given some other unmistakable mark to distinguish it from the south-pointing end.

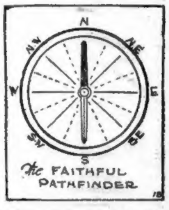
The pointing of the needle will then show where North is. As the needle settles down to rest turn the compass so that the mark N corresponds with the north point of the needle.

Now facing North you have East on your right hand. In order to travel East you must lay out your course so that it corresponds with the line leading to the mark E on the disk of the compass.

This is at a right angle to the needle. As you go on stop from time to time and consult the compass in order to keep your course always in the same direction with reference to the needle.

Perhaps the clearest explanation of how to handle a pocket compass may be given by considering what "Cap" must have done in the "Pathfinder" story.

He and his guide saw the distant smoke by climbing a tall tree. When they descended, "Cap" knew that they would no longer see the smoke. So he "set it by compass"; i. e., he noted by his compass what the direction of the smoke was with reference to the pointing of the needle.



After descending to the ground, then, all he had to do was to consult his compass occasionally, to see that the direction taken by his Indian guide continued to be at the same angle to the needle as was the direction in which he had seen the smoke from the tree-top.

More Trustworthy.

And yet it must be acknowledged that the Indian's apparently instinctive sense of direction, based upon indications so habitually and unconsciously recognized that he himself was hardly able to explain them, might at times prove more trustworthy than those of a compass, for local accumulations of iron and other disturbing elements sometimes render the compass utterly unreliable.

Still, I would advise nobody to go off alone in any part of the country far from habitations, and particularly in large forested regions and among mountains, without having a pocket compass and knowing how to use it.
